GERMANS HALTED, POLES SAY

Congress Expected to Get Call Today

ROOSEVELT TO SET OCTOBER DATE, BELIEF

President Determined to Have Embargo Lifted in Spite of Filibuster Threats.

SEEK SHORT SESSION

Administration Leaders Seek Brief Debate on Proposals to Permit Arms Sale.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt may announce today that date when he will call congress into a special session at which he wants the controverted arms embargo provision stripped from the neutrality law.

Before he left his Hyde Park (N. Y.) home last night, it was learned he had determined, despite fears of a senate filibuster, to issue a summons to the legislators.

The date remained indefinite, however. Since Mr. Roosevelt would have to allow time for members of congress to pack up and come to the capital, some authorities thought the session would not begin before early October.

Hope for Short Session.

Administration officials were hoping for a short session, restricted to patching up the neutrality act along lines suggested by Secretary Hull. Primarily, they want repeal of the provision forbidding exports of arms, ammunition and instruments of war to combatant countries.

The administration was represented as being none too pleased at the idea that congress might discuss neutrality for a protracted period.

Some officials were understood to be concerned over European reaction to the debate, particularly because of suggestions that any change in the rules of the game while a war was in progress might be interpreted as unneutral.

Before congress decided to postpone action on neutrality legislation at the last session, legislators were in agreement the scrapping of the arms embargo would permit Great Britain and France to obtain munitions in this country and virtually stop German purchases, by reason of the fact that British and French sea power generally has been acknowledged to be superior to that of Germany.

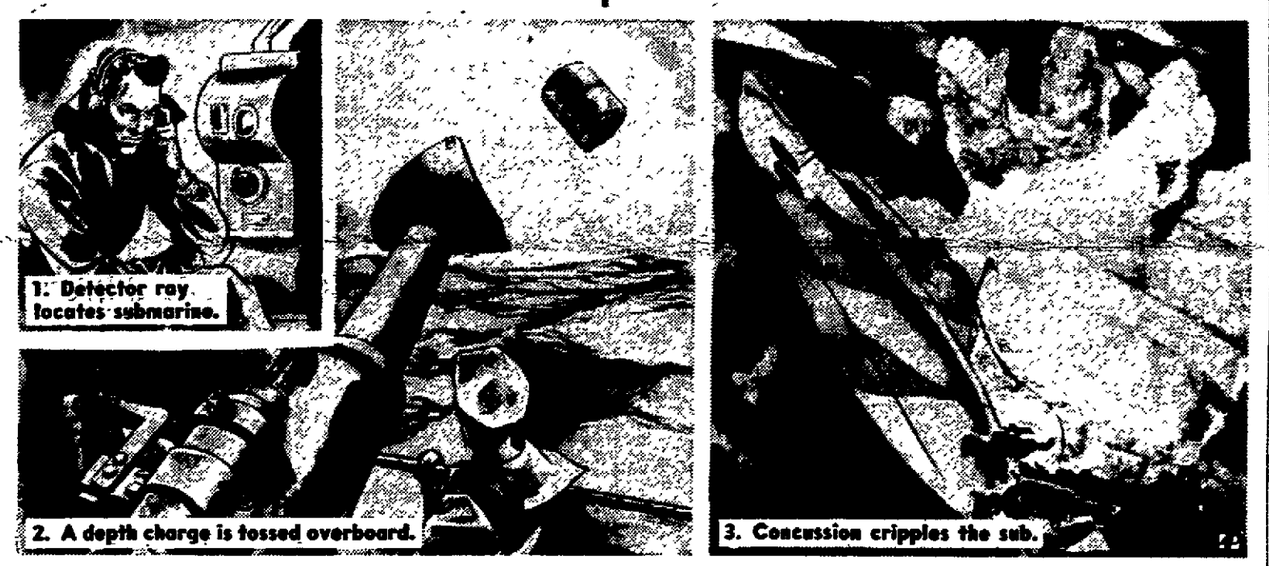
Administration authorities have toyed with the idea of trying to persuade the senate to invoke cloture, a parliamentary maneuver which would limit debate, but they have been convinced it would be all but impossible to toss aside the traditional senate prerogative of unrestricted debate on every issue.

Here's How U-Boat Gets Its Ship...

(By the Associated Press Feature Service)

THAT snake in the waves, the submarine, is a tough craft to cope with. It exposes so little of itself when it's on the surface that it can locate its prey and submerge before the surface craft knows it's anywhere near. But when it's below, there's plenty of maneuvering to be done. The officers trail their quarry by means of periscope and listening devices; calculate its speed and probable course. Since the torpedo is fired from within a sub, the whole boat has to be swung about to draw bead on the target. Therefore, if the sub can be pointed at the broad side, it's chances of making a hit are best. With merchant ships, U-boats are supposed to give passengers and crew a chance to get clear. That's dangerous—perhaps the merchantman carries a concealed gun, and subs are highly vulnerable to surface attack. If the quarry is a warship above destroyer size, it takes two or three torpedo strikes to inflict appreciable damage.

...And How Ship Sinks Submarine



IT TAKES a lot of equipment to sink a submarine. Mines, strung at several depths, can get them at the mouth of a harbor, but at sea it's tricky business. The British have made strides in submarine detection devices since the World war—sounding rays and other electrical developments. But it's still difficult to spot U-boats and harder yet to sink 'em. Depth bombs have been the most effective—"ashcans" full of TNT, rolled off the rear of a subchaser or fired by a special "Y" gun. The trick here is to sink the ashcan close to the sub and to get your own ship out of that neighborhood fast. The heavy charge is exploded under water with the hope that the concussion will spring the seams of the U-boat. If the sub-chaser doesn't get away, the concussion might damage it, too. Small guns are effective against submarines, too, if the sub can be caught on the surface.

PRAY FOR MUD TO STALL NAZI WAR MACHINE

Poland Sees Rain as Major Weapon to Halt Germany's Mechanized Forces.

TELLS OF WARSAW FLIGHT

Writer, Last to Leave Capital, Describes Scenes of Death, Terror Over Nation.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Poland's early hopes of long resistance to the German military machine have given way to terror and with scores of cities and villages hopelessly lacking in modern defenses, only the rains can save the country from being overwhelmed utterly. This was the pessimistic picture of the Polish situation as drawn today by James E. Brown. International News Service correspondent who was the last foreign newspaperman to leave Warsaw and who motored through the war-torn country to Cernauti on the Polish-Rumanian frontier. His dispatch, filed from neutral territory was not subjected to censorship.)

By JAMES E. BROWN
(INS Staff Correspondent

CERNAUTI, Polish-Rumanian Frontier—The whole of Poland prayed today for bad weather.

A downpour of rain and the muddy roads that will result from it alone can halt the forward march of Germany's mechanized army in Poland.

In the meantime, Polish troops are retreating on all fronts, hopelessly overwhelmed by aerial bombardments, superior artillery and manpower itself.

The feeling of Poland's population has changed from the supreme confidence of the early days to one approaching utter terror.

Gasoline Scarce.

Gasoline has become the scarcest commodity in all of Poland. I stood in line for ten hours at Lublin, equipped with a military pass, becore I could buy enough gasoline to reach Cernauti on the frontier.

Many Polish cities, including Lwow, are without anti-aircraft guns and are forced to defend themselves against air attacks with machine-guns and unwieldy heavy artillery.

Jewish villages are being systematically bombed time and time again. I drove through Tomaszow only half an hour after nine bombs had fallen in the center of the market place, killing at least 200 persons.

At Rawrnska, I was forced in a ditch while a German plane over-

Nazis Retreat From Suburbs, Poland Reports

Berlin Finally Admits "Great Battle" In Progress In Poland; Seek To Cut Polish "Life Line" To Rumania; Fight With Bayonets In West.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(U P)—The German high command reported today that the first great battle of the Polish war was reaching a "decisive" point in the Warsaw and Radom sectors of a 250-mile semi-circular front.

(By Associated Press)

The Poles today broadcast the assertion that after four days of bloody fighting they had forced German invaders "to retreat from some Warsaw suburbs."

Friday a swift German motorized column reached Warsaw from the southwest. Since then the Poles have battled desperately against the enemy at the gates of their capital.

While the battle for Warsaw went on German and French armies see-sawed inconclusively on the western front.

Concerning Poland, for the first time, the German army high command admitted "a great battle" was in progress.

A communique said this was nearing "its climax, the destruction of the Polish army west of the Vistula river," and reported other German gains against the "doggedly defending" Poles.

Budapest dispatches said planes, tanks and artillery were being massed for a quick drive on Lwow, in southeast Poland, to cut communications to Rumania, Poland's only possible land line for help from outside.

On the western front heavily-entrenched French and German forces struck at opposite ends of a 100-mile sector between the Rhine and Moselle rivers.

The French reported that the front was generally quiet but that they had scored one "local advance." This was on the eastern end of a sector between the Saar river and the Vosges mountains.

At the western end of the Saar basin line, where the first French advances were made, French were said to be holding off German counter-attacks with bayonets.

Germany said French artillery was firing on the Saarbruecken airdrome, which the Germans had abandoned previously, and declared three French planes had been downed.

Swiss reports said the German Siegfried line was "perfectly prepared" to meet attacks with highly mobile units ready to dash wherever needed. French aerial scouts reported German troop movements were being "bothered" by French raids on communication lines

Many observers believed that no knockout blow had been delivered the Polish army even though the lightning German assault packed terrific force.

Military experts said the moment was critical and that much depended on how the army had withstood the shock. Fate of the Polish air force was in doubt, but the army was believed to have saved the bulk of its mechanized equipment.

The Polish general staff in a communique said the Germans were continuing relentless bomb attacks around Warsaw, where 40 air raids were reported yesterday.

A similar attack seemed in store for Lwow, capital of the Polish Ukraine, and redoubled defense measures were started.

Britain intensified her naval and economic warfare against Germany after having lost 12 merchantmen in the first eight days of war. The ministry of information disclosed the 8,640-ton Magdapur was the latest victim. Two other vessels were added to the list yesterday.

Britain's reply was what she termed an "unremitting" campaign of "attacks and counter-attacks" against the U-boats and es-

EAST: Polish Army Holding To Warsaw; Nazis Drive On Lwow

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—German troops now are marching into Lodz, a German radio broadcast picked up in London this evening declared. Previous advices said the city, second largest in Poland, had been surrounded.

(By Associated Press)

A broadcast from the Polish radio station at Lwow today declared that after four days of bloody fighting the Polish army had forced German invaders "to retreat from some Warsaw suburbs." The report was broadcast at 2:10 p. m. (8:10 a. m. EST.)

The Lwow station, about 220 miles southeast of Warsaw, said German planes were bombing the heart of Warsaw, but did not estimate casualties.

A Warsaw broadcast two hours earlier had indicated the Polish army still was holding the defense lines of their capital.

Meanwhile the German supreme high army command's communique acknowledged for the first time today that a major battle is in progress in Poland.

In the south, they said, Polish troops appeared to be fighting gallantly against overwhelming odds.

Nothing was said in the communique about Lodz, Polish tex-

WEST: French, German Troops See-Saw On 100-Mile Front

(By Associated Press)

The heavily-entrenched French and German armies struck at opposite ends of a 100-mile sector between the Rhine and Moselle rivers today as the western front see-sawed back and forth.

The morning communique from the French General staff announced the front was generally quiet during the night, but that French troops had succeeded in making one "local advance" under cover of darkness.

A German communique from the western front said a French vanguard sustained heavy losses, but no mention was made of how the Nazis fared.

It was obvious from propaganda efforts that Germany still was trying to prevail on the French not to take the war seriously.

The Germans apparently were trying just as hard to divide the French and British as the latter were attempting to keep Italy from fighting beside the Reich.

The new zone of French attack was on the eastern end of a line from the Plateau of Bitche down into Germany's Palatinate area, between the Little Saar river and the Vosges mountains.

The German counter attacks, which the French were reported to be holding off with bayonets, were directed against the western

MAYOR PROBES ASHLAND 'FEUD'

Promises Inquiry Into Charges of Councilman That Police, Firemen Are on 'Outs.'

ASHLAND—Mayor Art Mason said today he would investigate charges of Councilman H. D. Lingle that city police have failed to cooperate with the fire department because there is a "feud" between the two departments.

Lingle made the accusation at a council meeting Friday night when another member proposed the purchase of a new fire alarm system.

Lingle said it was his impression that the reason the alarm system had not been operated recently was because the police would not sound the alarm when there were no firemen there to do it.

Police Chief Herman D. Fetzer denied, however, that there is any friction between the two departments. Firemen said they either knew of no "feud" or declined to comment on the councilman's charge.

UP 10 POINTS

War Buying To Push Steel Operations To 62 Per Cent.

CLEVELAND — (INS)—A heavy rush of orders accompanying the outbreak of war is expected to push steel ingot production up ten points from last week's 62 per cent of capacity, the magazine Steel said today.

Scrap prices have jumped, and the magazine's composite price is up 29 cents to $15.79, highest in two years. In addition, indications point to higher prices before the end of the year.

C. OF C. OFFICIAL DEAD

AKRON—(U.P.)—L. C. Warner, 49, executive secretary of the Akron Chamber of Commerce, died of a heart attack Sunday.

FROM 95 TO 37!

Mercury Skids During Night; Only 67 at Noon.

Mansfielders brought out heavier clothing today, after the mercury dipped to 37 degrees during the night, just two days after the city sweltered in 95-degree weather.

The 37-degree reading, five degrees above freezing, was the lowest since last spring.

It will be warmer tomorrow, the weatherman said, but the temperature rise will probably bring showers.

The temperature stood at 67 degrees at noon today. Sunday's high was 75 and the 24-hour average was 64, two degrees below normal.

The low mark this morning was nearly 60 degrees under the season's heat record of 95 set last Friday.

When he returned to his car he found a ticket for overtime parking, went back to the city hall and paid a $1 fine.

H. E. McClure, Former Police Chief Dies; Funeral Tuesday

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Jones funeral home for Herbert E. McClure, former Mansfield police chief who died Saturday afternoon at the General hospital after a lingering illness.

Mr. McClure was secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Brotherhood of Police Officers which he helped to organize following his retirement from the police force in 1930 after nearly 25 years of continuous service.

Born at Hayesville March 8, 1877, he had lived in Mansfield 36 years.

He was appointed to the police department as a patrolman March 21, 1905 by former Mayor Huntington Brown. He was made a captain Dec. 24, 1909, assistant police chief in 1917 and eight months later, on June 15, 1918 he was named chief, a position he held until he retired Feb. 20, 1930.

Members of the police department who had served under the former chief agreed in unison today that the department had lost one of its "best friends."

The man who had guided the activities of the police force in Mansfield for 12 years was regarded by the men who served under him as one of the city's "best" executive officers and organizers.

Strike Settled, 3,000 Idle Since Aug. 31 Back On Job.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — (INS) — The United Auto Workers union, CIO wing, held its first contract with the Bandix Products Corp., today following settlement of a strike which had kept 3,000 employes idle since August 31. Under the settlement reached last night, terms of which were not made public, work was to be resumed immediately.

HIT NEW HIGHS

Stock Market's 'War Boom' Sends Gains Up to $6.

NEW YORK —(INS)— The stock market today pushed through to new highs for the "war boom," with gains of $1 to more than $6 a share.

Volume of trading again was enormous and the high-speed ticker ran 6 minutes late in the first rush of buying. This brought "flash" prices from the stock exchange floor for the first time in months.

Steels continued to lead the uprush, Bethlehem featuring with a spurt of more than $6 a share to a new 1939 high. U. S. Steel also hit a new top on a jump of almost $4. Coppers, chemicals and other "war babies" also were prominent.

War commodities, as grains, sugar, and metals, were strong and active.

PILOT-TRAINING COLLEGES OKED

Eight Ohio Schools Approved by U. S. to Teach Flying Among Civilians.

Eight Ohio colleges today were among 166 colleges approved by the civil aeronautics authority for participation in the civilian pilot training program, dispatches from Washington said today.

They were: University of Cincinnati; Ohio State university; University of Akron; University of Toledo; Kent State university; Mount Union college; Kenyon college and Ohio university.

Additional applications will be approved shortly and by Sept. 18, at least 300 institutions will have been certified for participation in the program, the CAA said.

Approximately 11,000 new civilian pilots will be trained during the coming school year under the program, authorized by the last session of congress to build up the nation's reserve military aviation personnel.

Other colleges and universities approved by the CAA for the pilot training program include:

Indiana—Purdue university, Lafayette; Butler university, Indianapolis; Indiana Technical college, Fort Wayne; Gary Junior college, Gary.

ARGUE, DROWNED

World War Vets Quarrel Over New War, Fall In River.

HIGGINSPORT, O.—(U.P.)—Two Higginsport veterans who fought side by side in the World war were dead here today as the result of an argument over the European conflict, which caused them to fall from a John-boat and drown in the Ohio river.

QUITS FORCE

Kneeland Resigns at 69, Poor Health His Reason.

William L. Kneeland, 69, veteran Mansfield police officer resigned his position as patrolman on the police force because of ill health.

His resignation was submitted to Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist today and becomes effective Sept. 14. He had been on the police force 19 years and nine months.

Nist said he would approve the resignation immediately and asked the civil service commission to certify three names from the police eligible list so the vacancy can be filled.

Kneeland, oldest officer on the police force, wrote the director that "due to illness and upon recommendation" from his physician he was resigning subject to the approval of his application for pension by the police pension board.

Kneeland was appointed to the police department Nov. 4, 1919. He has been off duty since June 14, when he applied for a 90-day leave because of illness.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WE HAD struck the right note in placating my mother-in-law. The love of mystery and of melodramatic action is one of her strongest characteristics, so I was not surprised to hear her disclaim vehemently my suggestion that she might wish us to wait until some other time to recite the saga of the events leading up to our recent journey to the farm.

"Wait!" she exclaimed scornfully. "What is there to wait for? Everybody's settled in their rooms, and a mess they are, too! But there was no use starting that ape on any cleaning up when I only had ten minutes notice—hardly that. When your husbanhd told me"—she looked at Lillian—"he said you might be along any time, so what was there I could do? And I already have Katie over the coals in the kitchen, and have told her what to get for lunch."

I managed a smile at my mother-in-law.

"Then may we come in now and tell you the little we know?" I asked. "After that I'll go to see the children."

"They're crazy to see you," she said graciously. "They only had a minute with you downstairs. But Mrs. Bickett is keeping them quiet in the nursery until you come, and they do not expect you yet awhile. I heard her tell them you would be very busy for an hour, so you have time to come in here first."

She flung wide the door, beckoned us in, indicated comfortable chairs where we were to sit and put her hand on her own chair to draw it forward. But both Lillian and I were at her side before she could move it, and installed her in the chair before we sat down ourselves opposite her.

"Now, begin!" she said majestically. And without further delay we plunged into the story of the decoy message we had received about Noel's injury, of Mary's journey to him escorted by armed guards, of the discovery of Noel gagged and bound, and of Noel's later revelation that Jack Leslie was responsible. At that dreaded name my mother-in-law paled and gasped.

"Jack Leslie! Don't tell—Margaret—my drops, please!"

Lillian brought out water. I measured out the drops and in a minute the faintness passed.

"Don't you think—" I began doubtfully when the attack was over, but my mother-in-law put up an imperative and protesting hand.

"I think only one thing," she said: "that I want to hear the rest of this: I am perfectly all right. Go on!"

And go on we did, through the chase of Jack Leslie, the report to my father and his decision when he heard of the wrecked Leslie car only five miles from the farmhouse, that we must all come down to the farm, and of the machinery that was even now being set in motion for the capture of Leslie.

Then, knowing that my mother-in-law, entrusted with a secret, was as "safe as a church," I put the cap sheaf upon her excitement by telling her that my father believed the capture of Leslie would solve the mystery of Queen Olga's missing emeralds. I counted, rightly, upon the pleasurable excitement of that discovery to counteract the shock of hearing about Noel's injury and Mary's danger.

"Oh! oh!" she murmured happily, "How terribly thrilling! Now, what can I do to help?"

I was at a loss to answer her and Lillian promptly came to my aid.

"Dear Madam Graham," she said, "I am sure there will be something very definite for you to do later on. Just now, not one of us has any orders save to stay quiet and conserve our strength. The Chief has sent Harry out to round up the men he wishes to see, and until he formulates his plans there is absolutely nothing for anyone of us to do. Even the Chief is sleeping until Harry shall come back."

"Then," my mother-in-law said with decision, "I shall follow his example and take a nap myself. If there is something for me to do later, I shall be ready for it. Thank you so much, both of you; and you may go now."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, September 12.

A DAY in which much steady progress may be made, following the decisive breaking up of static conditions, impediments and tenacious obstacles, is forecast. Rather drastic action will ensue on the removal of such limitations, depressions and stagnations, placing the fortunes and interests on an enduring basis. There may be increased property values: also substantial support from elders or old institutions. But be careful in the matter of signatures, and refrain from impulsive or rash moves.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of definite action, following a long siege of stagnation, depression and frustration. There may be determined moves toward progress and stability. These may have the assistance of elders or of old-established institutions. Shun impulsive moves, excitement or recklessness, and sign papers cautiously.

A child born on this day may be practical and systematic, having much sturdiness of character to back up versatility and shrewdness. It should succeed by its own merit and determination.

Spiced beet slices or pickled carrots make piquant garnishes for the cold meat platter. A few of each will do, along with a few sprigs of parsley.

THEATERS

THIS AND THAT: Things move so rapidly these days that picture campanies are wondering if today's "shooting" won't be passe tomorrow. For months Warner Brothers have been working on a new anti-Nazi picture, "Underground." But it tells a story which might have been true yesterday but certainly is not today. It deals with a movement in Germany to oust Hitler . . . Looks as if Mickey Rooney may be just another "problem child." In an effort to get him to stay home at nights a little more, the 15-year-old is being given a new "mumpus house" on the family ranch. The house will have a gymnasium, a music room, a dance floor and an indoor badminton court. Anything to keep the kiddies home.

"Rains Came" Attracts.

Mansfielders continue to show their interest in Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came" by keeping the box office cash register going at a merry clip on Saturday and Sunday following the Friday night premiere. Probably no other film in the entire history of pictures has so interested Mansfield as this one, and it is quite likely to hang up a record for attendance during its week engagement here. And although the author is the high point of interest for movie goers in this vicinity, the box office pull of the cast cannot be overlooked. Myrna Loy herself is a big attraction here, while Tyrone Power has a big following, as has George Brent. Brenda Joyce and a large cast of distinguished character players support the stellar trio.

Old and New Songs.

Bing Crosby, the bellwether in the purveyance of song, sings both old and new melodies in "The Star Maker," which was inspired by the life of Gus Edwards. Interwoven in the story of a dreamy, penniless young song writer, are the old melodies which Edwards wrote years ago, and with them are four new numbers written especially for the picture. Linda Ware, a new singing child star, makes her appearance in the film, along with more than a hundred youngsters. The picture is at the Madison through Tuesday.

Two Big Attractions.

Two of the year's big pictures are combined to make the Ritz program for three days, starting tomorrow. Charles Laughton, with Elsa Lanchester, is seen in "The Beachcomber," the film adaptation of Somerset Maugham's story of a beachcomber and a missionary who set her mind to winning him. The second film is "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell," which blends the personal romance of Bell with his inventing of the present telephone. Loretta Young plays the lovely young wife of Bell and Don Ameche is seen as the inventor.

Timely Story.

When Warner Brothers started to make "Wings of The Navy" last year they couldn't possibly have known that President Roosevelt would be urging the 76th congress this year to appropriate millions to build up the aviation forces of the navy, yet if they had known they would have made exactly this film. The story fits the events of this summer like a glove. The picture was made at the Pensacola, Fla., and San Diego air bases, with George Brent, Olivia deHavilland, John Payne and Frank McHugh. Dick Powell and Anita Louise in "Going Places" is also to be shown on the Majestic screen tomorrow.

Bill of Contrasts.

Two films that are in sharp contrast are holding the Park screen the first half of the week. "Sorority House" is a gay and musical college story with Anne Shirley and James Ellison, while the reissue of "Of Human Bondage" is high drama and human tragedy. This was the picture which won an academy award several years ago for Bette Davis. It is still one of her greatest performances. Sharing top honors with Hollywood's first lady of the screen is Leslie Howard. This also is a Somerset Maugham story.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Here is a deal on which East bid 1-Spade, South 2-Diamonds, West 2-Hearts, North 2-No Trumps and then East went into a blue study. He decided that, since his side was vulnerable, a game would be worth more than defeating the opponents a little bit. Since they were not vulnerable, he reckoned they were probably overbidding. So he bid 3-Hearts, in the hope that West could take it to game. At 3-Hearts it was played and was defeated one trick, whereas the 2-No Trumps would have been beaten for a certainty by a heart lead, probably a couple of tricks.

Against South's 1-Heart, North's 2-Hearts and South's 4-Hearts, what should West lead?

FIRST SESSION.

Miss Hester Robinson entertained members of the Review of Reviews club for the first meeting of the season Friday evening at her home in Pavonia. Miss Leota Hunter, president, was in charge of the business session, and Mrs. B. W. Knapp gave a paper on "History Makers of Today." Refreshments were served at small tables at the close of the program. On Oct. 13 Mrs. Joseph Yeagle will have the meeting of the club at her home in Ashland.

The first meeting of the season was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Appleman, Maple street, when 30 members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail association gathered. During the business session the bi-ennial national convention of the group was discussed.

The event will be held in Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 30 to Nov. 2. Later in the afternoon the guests toured the garden and had a hamburger fry. Mrs. O. B. Grafmiller, Mrs. B. O. Brenner, and Mrs. L. S. Wilson were the hostesses.

Cold Bord New Idea For Supper

Here's a souvenir from the New York World's Fair which you can use over and over again without wearing out. And it will delight all your bridge-playing neighbors who are looking for novelties for luncheons and suppers. Det Kolde Bord, or Cold Table, is a sensation at Denmark's Pavilion at the Fair.

At first glance, the Cold Table looks like all the good cold things in the world assembled together on a sheet of ice. But it is really a simple matter to prepare. There is a cold roast duck, stuffed with whole prunes with pits removed and an equal part of quartered apples. The flavor these fruits give is wonderful. Roast the duck several hours before your bridge party, because it must be very cold.

Color that is good to each is an important part of all the foods on the appetite-awakening cold table. There are radish flowers, festunes of watercress from the nearest chilly brook, firm little tomatoes cut into geometric shapes, beautiful golden flowers made of unsweetened butter, and cubes of aspic, shimmering with light and charged with flavor from fish or meat or vegetable stock.

Suggestions are hard-boiled eggs, sliced lengthwise and stuffed with anchovies, beet and celery salad served in a chilled glass bowl, cold roast beef, placed on a wooden platter, with sharp knife and large fork at hand for individual carving. You might have Danish curried salad, too, because it is a very easy dish to prepare but has enough novelty and surprisingly welcome flavor to give your supper party that note of difference I think most American hostesses feel they must achieve. Combine hard cooked eggs, quartered; pickled herring, asparagus tips, cold cooked peas, and blend together with 1 pint of home made or bottled mayonnaise mixed with two tablespoons best curry powder and ½ cup cold thick cream. Garnish with watercress.

Herring must appear at every self-respecting Danish cold bord. There should be a large assortment of cold fish such as white tuna, canned in olive oil, cold boiled salmon beautifully garnished with mayonnaise, cold boiled halibut made into a salad with sour cream dressing and capers, or if the budget will permit, with mayonnaise flavored with a little cavier, canned lobster meat or canned crab. Bermuda-type or Spanish onions white and mild and sweet, cut into rings, should garnish many of these fish dishes, and on the hospitable Danish tables you will always find cold roast veal garnished with cold red cabbage for these parties. Cheese, too, makes a large appearance.

Cheese is not a problem for the American hostess, for she can find an unlimited assortment of domestic cheeses, in packages ready to slice, at her corner grocery.

Use your dining room buffet, or table, or even two or three card tables securely strapped together, depending on the number of bridge tables you have asked. Place all these dishes on one table with a supply of dishes at one end, silver and napkins. Use blue and white napkins if you want to add another Danish touch. There should be rye and dark pumpernickle bread on the table also and, of course, an ample supply of Danish rye crisps now so popular here with ladies who are dieting, and equally popular with men who are not. There is an American brand being sold now which is less expensive than the genuine Danish type, and quite good, too.

Beer is a good drink for this type of supper. The Danes always serve aquavit with it too, usually with the bottle frozen in the case of ice. For those who object to alcoholic beverages, our noted Danish host suggests hot tea or a dry gingerale or coffee.

BERKELEY, Cal.—(U.P.)—Robert Rogers and Miss Marjorie, local muralist, had just completed a huge mural, entitled "Street Brawl," and which was all if not more than its name indicated, when Gov. County Keeps Traffic Record Clear 9th Week In Row

3 INJURED IN LONE MISHAP; 11 DIE IN OHIO

No Richland Fatalities From Auto Accidents Have Been Reported Since July 9.

Richland county's record of nine consecutive weeks without a fatal traffic accident remained intact today as a check-up showed only one traffic mishap over the week-end in which three Mansfielders received minor injuries.

At least 11 persons died in Ohio traffic, however, as fair weather attracted thousands of motorists to the highways.

The county has not had a fatal accident since July 9, but despite the good showing since then, there has been only one less fatal accident this year than at the same time last year. Fatalities now total 14 as against 15 on Sept. 11, 1938.

Hurt in the county's only accident over the week-end were Raymond L. Kern, 35, R. D. 3, Mansfield; Gerald Kern, 19, his brother, and Fred Schnittke, 25, of 510 Springmill street.

One Taken To Hospital.

Gerald Kern was in General hospital for observation. He suffered a neck injury. The other two received cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred at 3 a. m. Sunday when a car driven by Raymond Kern turned over on route 39 near Shelby when Kern attempted to pass another car.

Mrs. James Shea, 50, was killed and her husband, 66, of Lauderdale, Fla., was fatally injured in a head-on collision Saturday on route 42 two miles north of Delaware. He died Monday in a Delaware hospital.

Among the other state victims were three Cincinnati youths who died in a crash north of Cincinnati Others who died in Ohio included a two-year-old baby at Cleveland and Oliver F. Beavers, 31, of Columbus.

Two persons were hurt, neither seriously, Sunday afternoon when two cars collided at the intersection of routes 102 and 105 near Loudonville in Ashland county. The injured were Mrs. P. J. Carney, 52, and John Carney, jr., 6, both of Youngstown.

Here's Chance To Ride Ponies Used In 'Wizard' Film

Not all of the celebrities of Hollywood are glamor gals and boys and at least two of the non-singing, non-talking variety will appear in Mansfield at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

They are the two ponies. Wizard and Oz, who appear in the technicolor fantasy "The Wizard of Oz," which opens at the Ohio theater next Saturday. The ponies draw the little phaeton which carries Judy Garland to the wondrous Land of Oz.

Both the ponies and carriage will be brought to Mansfield on a cross country tour, and five Mansfield youngsters will have an opportunity to ride behind the ponies in the phaeton. The five will be selected in a contest which ends tomorrow at 5 p. m.

Youngsters who want to take the ride must send their name, address, weight, height and color of their hair and eyes, plainly written on a sheet of paper, to the Ohio theater. It must reach the theater not later than 5 p. m.

Another thrill of the contest will be the original costumes which also come to Mansfield and which the five lucky youngsters will wear on the ride which starts at the Ohio theater, continues east on Park avenue to Central park, north on Main street and then to several public school buildings.

The contest winners will be the five youngsters whose measurements come closest to those of the five costumes.

Puzzo Faces Counterfeit Charge Tomorrow

Up and Down THE STREET

Members of the Mansfield high school athletic staff proved to be better sailors than fishermen yesterday when they cruised over rough Lake Erie in search of pickerel. Not a single fish was caught by the party including Coaches Paul Snyder and Harry Mehock and Mathias (Pop) Elias, equipment custodian, but they forgot their disappointment in no time. The lake became so rough before they could return that they had to seek shelter at Put-In-Bay for five hours before attempting the return trip.

Young Charles McKinley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKinley, sr., is another Mansfielder who has had a thrill dodging submarines. He is aboard the British freighter Cairnross, returning home after spending a summer in England. He sailed from Glasgow Sept. 1 and today his parents received a wireless message from him stating that the Cairnross is due to dock in Montreal tomorrow. He plans to hustle right back to Mansfield.

While most of Mansfield was more interested in "The Rains Came" than any other picture in recent years, Peter Geisel, Southern hotel employe, centered his interst on "The Star Maker" at the Madison. Among the many youngsters in the picture is his grandson, Robert Coleman, 11, formerly of Crestline, who is one of the young dancers. Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Coleman who left Crestline a year ago to make their home in Hollywood.

As great a tribute as could be paid to the realism of any motion picture was that comment overheard at the first showing of "The Rains Came" at the Ohio theater Friday night. The continuous downpour during the film was so real that when the picture ended and the audience started moving out through the main lobby and the side entrance, one Mansfield woman in dinner dress, lifted her skirts instinctively and said: "Oh, we can't go out through the back exit—it will be muddy out there!" She was perfectly sincere, too.

FIND U. S. KNOWS MORE OF WAR SITUATION THAN EUROPE ITSELF

America is by far the best informed country in the world on on events leading up to the war with a better picture of what was happening than the countries that were actually in the picture. That is the belief of Mrs. Mollie Sutherland, Sidney, New South Wales, Australia, who has been a guest in Mansfield for the past week.

Mrs. Sutherland and her sister, Miss Nora Davies, also of Sidney, who are on a tour of the world, arrived in Mansfield seven weeks ago after their visit in Germany, France and England, and in two days in New York City they learned more about the European situation than they had in all their travels, they said.

"In France no one spoke of the war," Mrs. Sutherland said, "although the people were obviously depressed and everywhere there were indications of military preparations. In Germany there was even less indication that the country was on the brink of war. In fact, we could scarcely believe that anyone in Germany was aware of its nearness, for they only looked blank when we mentioned it.

"There are always soldiers in evidence in Germany, so that meant nothing in particular. But in the fields and throughout the countryside women—no men—were working feverishly to harvest the crops and get every bit of supplies stored away. I am sure they were working under orders, and I doubt if they knew themselves the meaning of the orders."

But two two women gained some idea of what Germans were thinking when they talked to an intelligent young German in England. "Why," he asked with a note of despair in his voice, "won't England leave us alone? Why is it bent on forcing another war onto us when we have not recovered from the last one?" There was, she said, no question of his sincerity. He honestly believed that England was the aggressor.

Mrs. Sutherland, who is associated with the refrigeration department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company at Sidney, and her sister, who is with the agriculture department of Australia, are making the world tour simply to see the world.

"I think we were more eager to see America than any other country," she said. "You know we Australians are British, and we are very loyal to the crown and love everything about the empire, but Australians have adopted the American way of life and business. Sidney, the largest city in Australia, is much more American than British.

"In France we thought we had found the friendliest people in the world, but here in America—well, you just can't understand unless like ourselves you've come to it as strangers. We expected friendliness, but not the informal, heart-warming hospitality that we have found in America."

Mrs. Sutherland and Miss Davies are leaving today for the west coast and will sail from Los Angeles.

ELECT TONIGHT

Police, Firemen Pick Pension Board Members.

Police and firemen will select two members from their respective departments tonight to represent them on the police and firemen's pension boards.

Police are now represented by Capt. John Miller and Lieut. Bruce Friday. The firemen are represented by Capt. Frank R. Stahl and Clarence O. Hall. All are candidates for re-election.

Council last Tuesday named Hary M. Emmons and re-elected George C. Kyle to the firemen's pension board and Arthur L. Croak and re-named Rusell D. Porch to the police pension board.

The firemen's pension board will meet Sept. 25 to select two citizens on the board while the police board will meet Sept. 28 for the same purpose.

On the firemen's pension board at present are C. C. Beelman, 356 Davis road, and Tolman Burns, 45 South Linden road. On the police board are E. K. Troll, 91 Stewart avenue, and Leroy Ish, 396 Oak street.

Nota later pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a term in federal prison. Puzzo has been free on $2,500 bond.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates and Detectives Oscar Krupp and Lee J. Remy will go to Cleveland tomorrow to testify at Puzzo's trial.

Remy and Krupps said they found 40 spurious $5 bills and eight $10 counterfeit bills in their possession.

Both men had served terms in the Ohio penitentiary. Nota, sentenced for burglary, was paroled Dec. 30, 1937 and Puzzo described by police as the "key man" in The News-Journal bomb plot in 1933, was sentenced for violating his parole on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

FAIR ENOUGH!

If Hitler Turned Toward Canada, We'd Forget Our Neutrality In a Second

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—In connection with the neutrality question little attention is paid to the fact that under the Monroe Doctrine the United States, for her own sake, forbids the transfer of Canada, or any other possession of Great Britain or France in this hemisphere to any other European power.

Canada was not specifically mentioned, and indeed, emphasis was placed on the Latin-American countries, but Canada undoubtedly was meant, for Russia then had a foothold on the North American continent and, in conceivable circumstances, might have been tempted to spread out and become our neighbor to the north.

Monroe's message said the United States would consider as dangerous to our own peace and safety any attempt by any European power, Russia obviously included, to extend its system to any portion of this hemisphere.

In the meantime occasions have occurred in which the United States acknowledged the right of European nations to decide whether they had reason to make war against American countries without intervention by us. The United States, having no control over the actions of these other American countries, refused to pledge herself to their defense in all wars which might occur. But the Monroe Doctrine does forbid European powers to acquire American territory by conquest or to compel the cession of territory as compensation for wrongs against them.

Temporary occupation of territory is not forbidden, for it would be hard for a European power to exercise its admitted right to make war without the right to occupy territory temporarily, but it is very doubtful that this nation would believe that Hitler, if victorious, would be at loss for excuses to settle down in Canada and linger indefinitely. The important question there would be "how long is temporarily?" and the attitude of the Americans undoubtedly would be that any attack on Canada constituted a danger to the United States.

It would be easier to keep Hitler out of Canada or Bermuda than to kick him out in the event that he conquered Britain and France.

Perhaps it is a little early to entertain the thought that he might conquer Britain and France, but that is a misgiving suggested by the fact that when Britain did send expensive planes over Germany the pilots dropped mash-notes, not bombs, apparently in the belief that they were playing post office.

Anyway, it comes about that Canada now is in this war against Hitler and, offensively, has nothing more than our best wishes—informally but plainly conveyed—but, defensively, has an implied assurance, amounting virtually to a guarantee, that we will regard military operations against her as an attempt to establish Hitlerism in Canada.

That, obviously, would call for a protest of our military might, including, no doubt, that of the dashing brigade of farm implements from Fort Knox, Ky., whose other regiment, on the return from the recent Plattsburgh fiasco, under peace conditions and on posted public highways, got lost like any holiday tourist.

So we are neutral in this war only up to the point at which Hitler, having kicked the old lady in the abdomen, looks around and decides to take a few pops at her North American son for heaving rocks at him and calling him out of his name while he was busy in Europe.

So, also, adherence to our neutrality, whether it be true neutrality or discrimination (and any high school debater could rattle off a beautiful lawyers' argument on either side of that question) constitutes important aid and comfort to a dictator, with world ambitions and a robust grudge against us, who has a better than outside chance of shoving in alongside us one day to kick things apart in Canada, as he is doing in Poland.

And the more neutral we are, according to the present concept of neutrality, the greater the chance that he will do just that, in time, in which case we wouldn't remain neutral five minutes.

Many earnest, peace-loving, patriotic citizens think or hope nothing of this kind could happen, but Hitler is a queerie who has made things happen which were equally unthinkable five years ago, and this country wouldn't let this one happen without a fight.

It is possible that a fight would be fatal to civilization and American freedom, even if we won, but it is absolutely certain that Adolf Hitler would be fatal to them if we lost.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Appropriate casting-of-the-week: Jackie Coogan in a new road-show company of "What a Life!"

Here's a young man who as a boy had everything, including millions and fame. Here's a fellow who has lived his life in reverse, attaining in infancy the fortune few men can hope to have in old age—and growing up, no longer "cute," to find he hasn't got millions after all, to find himself involved in a protracted legal fight to determine just what he has—a fight with his mother and his step-father. Here's young Coogan, that fight settled, and his marriage to Betty Grable apparently ended—young Coogan starting out again, this time alone.

And in "What a Life!" he must play the role of a mouncy, unsophisticated kid who doesn't know much about life. What a a life!

Mary Martin, the girl from Texas, starts her movie career in a lavender-and-old-lacy sentimental role (in "The Life of Victor Herbert") but Paramount ought to discover soon, what it's probably forgotten, that Mary is a natural comedienne. . . . The talent corps out on the set, in spite of all the fetching period costumes, the glamor make-up, and the other trappings of her romantic part.

Incidentally, the young blonde thing who plays Mary's daughter in the picture, billed as Susanna Foster, is the same child wonder-singer who spent a year at Metro, doing nothing under her real name of Susanne Larsen from Minneapolis. . . . Susanna, or Suzanne, sings a B-Flat above High C, which is close to the stratosphere in the vocal range. "I do that easily," she says, "and I can go higher, but I won't—because I don't want to strain my voice."

"Victor Herbert" is a break for Susanna—the picture opens and closes with her in the limelight, Mary and Allan Jones, the leads, doing their shining in the footage between. . . .

Longer even than Suzanne Larsen in getting a chance to screen-sing has been Dennis Morgan, the former Stanley Morner of Metro. . . . Morgan has been in pictures three years straight, but the closest he has come to song before today was the "Pretty Girl" number in "The Great Ziegfeld." He was photographed for that while another voice—Allan Jones's—did the song.

In a picture called, of all unmusical things, "State Cop," Morgan is being allowed to give for the first time. It would be nice to report that Warner Bros. planned it that way, but that would be exaggeration.

He was supposed to sing only one song, just a snatch from "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," but Terry Morse, the director, heard it and called to bigwigs to listen. Result: Moe Jerome and Jack Scholl were put to composing, and Dennis Morgan has five numbers in what isn't a musical picture.

YOUNG men of America go to war this week-end!

But, fortunately, their war will not be fought with rifles and cannons.

Conflict will be confined to the reaches of the chalk-marked football fields, not shell-marked battlefields.

Hostilities on the gridiron in this vicinity will be launched Friday afternoon and evening, with Mansfield, one of the few schools in the state without a lighting plant for nocturnal games, holding the stage almost to themselves the following day.

Among the games listed in the immediate section: Centerburg at Bellville and LaRue at Butler, Friday afternoon; Wooster at Madison and Norwalk at Shelby, Friday night, and Akron West at Mansfield, Saturday afternoon.

WELL, BOYS, IT'S ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTIN'

ABOUT all you hear in the way of baseball today concerns the major league races.

The Ohio State league race became a thing of the past yesterday, and today our Braves started the trek homeward, perhaps just a wee bit tired of baseball for one year.

By dusk the Mansfield baseball population will be reduced to a minimum. Pitcher Leon Maloney of Palmyra, Mich., is the only player who is certain to be around these parts for at least a couple of weeks. He plans to remain here during the off season if he can obtain employment.

Those who have (or will) entrained and their destinations: Stan Olesko to Detroit, Charley Wrenn to Pittsburgh, "Spotsy" Sparlichino to Cambridge, Mass., Harry Siegbert to Chicago, Howard Beals to Pickerington, O., Jack Weiler to Johnson City, Tenn., Frank Ankenbrandt and Steve Gromek also to Detroit, Hank Edwards to nearby Norwalk, Paul Curley and Del Leslie to Cincinnati, George Laurila to Newberry, Mich., Lefty Mossor to Point Pleasant, W. Va., Bob Schremser to his home somewhere out in the west, and Dewey Stover to Tiffin.

Howard Patterson and Freddy Lewis, of course, do not have far to return home.

BALDINGER'S GUN HIGH ON 'MUZZLERS' RANGE

Baldinger set the scoring pace in the weekly shoot of the Muzzle Loaders club at its range Saturday with a percentage of .666. He won two firsts and three seconds in six events. He also was high in the special 50-yard shoot.

Only Four Veterans Return at Butler

Pictured above is the forward wall which Coach Bob Burgett believes will be on the firing line when the Butler Bulldogs launch their season against LaRue at Butler Friday. Left to right are, David Grubb, Walter Sawdey, "Red" Dalbey, Capt. Bob Arnold, Junior Crunkleton, Clark Stahl and "Red" Harris. Sawdey and Arnold are the only veterans.

Coach Burgett Faces Tough Task Building Lineup for Nine-Game Schedule.

By CHARLES MARTIN

IT'LL BE SOMEWHAT of a miracle if Coach Bob Burgett of Butler high school doesn't have several gray hairs on his head before winter sets in.

Burgett, starting his second year as head of the athletic department of Butler high, faces one of the biggest jobs of any coach in Richland county as he tries to assemble a grid machine that will stand up against the tough nine-game schedule he has lined up this fall.

Only four veterans are back, and Mentor Burgett must fill several important positions from a group of some 17 youngsters, and some of them never handled a pigskin before.

Last year Burgett had Kenny Miller, Bob Boals and Wendel Ward to form the backbone of the Bulldogs' football forces—but all of them graduated last spring.

Lettermen back for another attempt to help put Butler on the map are Capt. Bob Arnold, center, Bob Kunkle, fullback, Jack Wilson, quarterback, and Walter Sawdey, a tackle.

Wilson, who tips the Toledos around the 150 mark, is Burgett's selection to fill the berth vacated by Miller. The new signal-caller has a real assignment—for Butler faces some of the outstanding Class B elevens in this district.

Five linemen and two halfbacks must be selected from the inexperienced bunch. How well they will be able to fulfill their posts against such teams as Mt. Gilead, the Mt. Vernon high Reserves, Bellville and Loudonville, is one of the big question marks in Burgett's mind.

The Bulldogs will receive their first test when LaRue invades Butler Friday afternoon. Not much is known about LaRue, but Burgett expects lots of trouble for his proteges.

Butler this year will dash out on the field in bright new orange and black uniforms. The new outfits were purchased this summer.

Hi-Speeds Win Series With Liberty Park

Beer, Dudley Hurl Oilmen to Victories in Twin Bill.

The Hi-Speeds had a good claim to the city semi-pro baseball championship today.

Yesterday they took two games from Liberty Park, 9 to 4 and 5 to 1, on the loser's diamond to make the third tilt of a three-game series unnecessary.

The best game of the two was the afterpiece in which Petey Beer and Al Boyer, who recently returned from the Ashland, Ky., club of the Mountain States league, hooked up in one of the best sandlot pitching duels of the season.

Beer yielded only two hits, while his teammates collected only three off Boyer's delivery. Boyer struck out 13, and Beer whiffed seven while issuing only one walk.

Don Dudley was on the mound for the Hi-Speeds in the first game, and, although hit hard, he scattered the blows. Joe Atton and Clarence Herrick divided six of the 14 hits obtained by the Hi-Speeds off the deliveries of Pete Keiser and Pete Metz.

Franks led the Lucas attack with a home run, two triples and a single. Stinson and Fulton also starred on the attack for Lucas. The Shiloh batting leaders were Mossor, Kissel and Hammon.

KOBACKER STORE TEAM DEFEATS NICK'S PLACE

The Kobacker Store softball representatives topped Nick's Place, 20 to 16, in a slugfest at Columbia Tire field yesterday. The winners topped their scoring with six tallies in the third frame. McPeek and Merschdorf were the batting stars for Kobacker's with a pair of home runs apiece. K. Mapes also added a homer to the attack.

Inmates Beaten In Final Game

The Ohio State Reformatory baseball team closed its season by dropping a 14 to 4 decision to the Sandusky All-Stars at the reformatory field Saturday. The visitors tallied four times in the first frame to take a lead it never relinquished. Hatch led the inmates at the plate with a home run and single. Caliver of the reformatory and Puckrin of Sandusky also hit circuit clouts. The loss was the fourth suffered by the inmates in 16 games this year.

Fights for Berth With Tygers

One of the outstanding newcomers on Coach Paul Snyder's new Mansfield high school football squad is Gene Miller, above, an end candidate. Miller, who recently returned to this city after residing in Seattle, Wash., for several years, is a senior. Snyder said that it is likely that Miller will be at one of the wings when the Tygers launch their season with Akron West at Stadium field Saturday.

Wallop Hens In Finale

Braves Take Measure of Tiffin by 27 to 10 Score, But Again Lose to Norwalk.

THE Mansfield Braves put on their greatest scoring session of the year as they dropped the curtain on the 1939 Ohio State league season with a one-sided 27 to 10 triumph over the Tiffin Mudhens before a disappointing Sunday gathering at the Fairground.

That scoring splurge enabled the Braves to break even over the week-end. They suffered a 4 to 1 setback at the hands of the Lima Pandas at Lima Saturday night before a large turnout.

Mansfeild spotted Tiffin to a 5-0 lead in yesterday's slugfest, but took command of the situation by sending 11 markers across the plate in the third to take a lead that was never threatened. Sixteen Braves walked to the plate in that weird inning.

The Mudhens used six men on the hill in an effort to silence the hard-hitting Mansfield outfit.

After taking an 11 to 5 lead in the third, the Braves came back with four tallies in the fourth, six in the fifth, and three each in the sixth and seventh frames. The 11 runs was the most scored by the Braves in any single inning all year.

Bob Schremser was on the mound for the Braves, and although he gave up 17 hits, was able to survive because of the huge advantage supplied by his teammates.

Tiffin added two markers in the sixth and three in the eighth but it made no difference. Claude Sebring was serving them up when the big spree got under way in the third. McHugh relieved him and in turn was replaced by Green before the side was retired.

Fulghum was the next victim and then Joseph, the rightfielder and Cindric, regular first baseman took their turn on the hill.

The 27 runs scored by the Braves is believed to equal the league scoring record for the season.

Manager Dewey Stover led his proteges at the plate with two doubles and a pair of singles in six official trips. Charlie Wrenn, who scored five runs, got a single in his one official time at bat.

Mansfield dropped a heartbreaker in Lima Saturday. With George Laurila hurling five-hit ball, the Braves went into the last of the eighth with a 1 to 0 lead, but Lima sent four runs over the plate and it was all over. The Braves secured six hits off Evans.

The Mansfield club lost a 4 to 2 decision to the Keller News club at Norwalk last night. The winners tallied three markers in the initial frame and added one in the second to cinch the game.

Mansfield's two tallies were scored in the second frame as Yockman held the club to five his. Hank Edwards, the Braves' rightfielder, played seven positions against Norwalk. He performed for two innings at first base, and an inning each at second, third, shortstop, left, center and right field. Edwards led the Mansfielders with two singles.

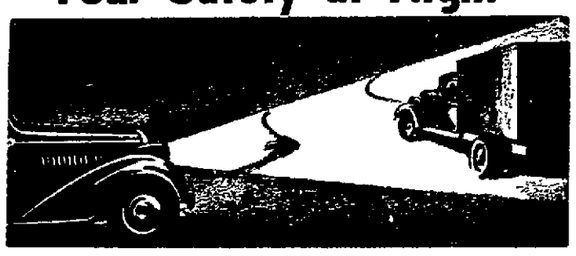
Your Safety at Night



DEPENDS On Your LIGHTS

Investigation of automobile accidents by safety organizations shows that accidents during the hours of darkness are more serious than those occurring in the daytime. This is due to the fact that cars at night are driven too fast for the range of visibility afforded by improperly adjusted headlamps
Don't drive your car with lights that are not properly adjusted. We use the GUIDE HEADLAMP TESTER. It has state and municipal approval and is used by many new car manufacturers.
Drive in and let us restore your lights to their original efficiency

These payments are calculated at Household's new reduced rates of 2% monthly on balances up to $300 and 6% yearly on balances over $300 to $500. These rates are less than legal maximum, and are the same to everyone—one price to all. Only borrowers sign—no endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives.

RUSH FOR WAR STOCKS SPURS BRISK ADVANCE

Selected Industrials Up One to More Than Six Points; Many Hit New Peaks.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Another buying rush for war stocks brought market temperature to the boiling point today and selected industrials mounted 1 to more than 6 points, many to new peaks for 1939 or longer.

The ticker tape during the entire first hour was as much as 6 minutes behind floor transactions with blocks running to 7,000 shares changing hands frequently. There was a let-up later and top quotations were cut in numerous instances, but near mid-day, traders once more gave the list a whirl and the recording machinery again lagged. Top marks were well maintained.

Brokerage offices were crowded. Purchasing orders from all over the country swamped clerks.

Fastest sprinter in the early run-away was Bethlehem Steel, ranking as one of the chief "war babies," this stock started with a block of 6,000 shares, up 4¼ to 93, then got up several points more. Prominent with lesser advances also were U. S. Steel, Youngstown and Republic.

Stimulating renewal of the upswing, observers suggested, was the growing belief the overseas conflict would be long drawn out and that United States industries in all groups would benefit, especially if the proposed special session of congress amends the neutrality law permitting belligerents to do business with this country on a "cash-and-carry" basis.

U. S. governments slipped but corporate bonds followed stocks. Most commodities pointed higher.

Crawford Pupils Defy Board As They Enroll At Plymouth

Twenty-three pupils from the North Auburn district in Crawford county started to school at Plymouth today despite the refusal of the Crawford county board of education to sanction their transfer to the Richland county district.

To avoid possible legal action, parents of the pupils took them to the county line where school buses from Plymouth met them and transported them to Plymouth.

Glenn West, Crawford county superintendent, had said that sending buses into the North Auburn community by the Plymouth district would constitute a violation of the state school laws and might lead to legal action against Plymouth school officials.

Parents of the North Auburn pupils sent them to Plymouth after the Crawford county school board dismissed a petition seeking a transfer to Plymouth.

Supt. West said the petition was ruled out because it failed to state definitely the territory to be transferred. It carried more than the required 75 per cent of signatures for the transfer.

TO THE MAN WHO WANTS TO GET A CASH LOAN AT LOW COST

IF you want to get a loan at the lowest cost, there are three things that you should do.

1. Insist on being told what rate of interest you are asked to pay for your loan.
2. Compare rates and terms. Then get your loan where you pay the lowest interest charge.
3. Take only as long to repay your loan as you really need.

Many loan companies charge the maximum rate permitted by the Ohio small loan law (3% per month on loans up to $300 and 8% per annum on balances above $300.) There are other companies which charge less than this lawful maximum. At Household Finance you pay only 2% per month on loans of $20 to $300 and 6% per annum on balances above $300. These charges—the lowest we have ever offered—are actually ⅓ below the lawful maximum.

There are three reasons why we can make loans at these low rates: (1) We do a large volume of business which reduces our expenses. (2) Our 60 years of experience makes possible more efficient operation and lower costs. (3) We have access to large amounts of money to lend to our customers.

One rate to everyone at Household

Every customer gets the benefit of our low rates. We have only one rate schedule, available to everyone. The table below shows just a few examples of how you save at Household.

YOU CAN BORROW $20 TO $500 IF YOU CAN MAKE THESE SMALL MONTHLY PAYMENTS

This table is based on prompt repayment. You may pay ahead of schedule if you wish. Advance payment reduces the cost of your loan proportionately since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments are calculated at Household's new reduced rates of 2% per month on loans up to $300 and 6% per year on balances above $300 up to $500. These rates are 1/3 less than the lawful maximum.

12 Vessels Sunk, Britain Tightens Warfare at Sea

CABINET SEES EUROPEAN WAR LAST 3 YEARS

Decision on Length of Strife Considered 'Withering' Reply to Nazi 'Peace Feeler.'

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The United States lines reported today that the freighter American Shipper had rescued the crew of the British steamer Blairlogie which had been torpedoed in mid-Atlantic.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Great Britain intensified her naval and economic warfare against Germany today, having lost 12 merchantmen in the first eight days of what the cabinet regards as a war that will last at least three years.

Public opinion also seemed inclined toward preparations for a long war and scorned what were presumed to be German intentions of offering peace after a lightning conquest of Poland.

The press almost unanimously backed up the cabinet's decision to base its policy on the premise of a three-year war, regarding the announcement as Britain's "withering" answer to a peace feeler" in German Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's speech Saturday.

Furthermore, dispatches indicated the final blows against Poland were not imminent. War correspondents, whose reports just are beginning to reach England, stressed Poland's army still is intact, and that withdrawal always has been part of the Polish plans.

The 12th British ship sent to the bottom was the 8,640-ton Magdapur. The ministry of information announced her sinking last night with an undisclosed number of casualties, but did not announce how or where she was sunk.

The 2,796-ton Goodwood was reported by the British Press association yesterday to have been sunk in the North Sea.

The government's answer was two-fold. It swung into an "unremitting campaign of "attacks and counter-measures," and, secondly, extended machinery for its "contraband control" through stations in Gibraltar and Alexandria, at both ends of the Mediterranean, and on Ceylon in the Indian ocean.

Tells of Sub Activities.

No details were given in a laconic communique which said "It appears that German submarines are now operating far afield." But the ministry of information said the admiralty had received "numerous reports" of operations against German submarines and "probably some have been successful."

The admiralty reported Britain's navy "particularly busy in waters about the British Isles and the Atlantic."

The government still was concealing its military program, confining most communiques to naval and aerial operations and civil defense.

The last week-end with unlimited gasoline—rationing starts next Saturday—brought out motorists in such numbers that roads and resorts were jammed.

Crowds thronged also into parks, movies, football games and the Whipsnade zoo, where many of the London zoo animals have been taken.

Most eager of all, however, were the "evacuation widowers" who walked, bicycled, thumbed rides, drove and jammed trains to see their wives and children for the first time since they were removed from London.

SECOND SERVICE

Evangelistic Meetings Continue At Franklin Township Church.

The second in a series of evangelistic meetings at the Richland Church of the Brethren, Franklin township, will be held at 8 p. m. today.

Services opened yesterday and will continue through next Sunday when an all-day meeting will be held. Rev. C. H. Deardorff, pastor of the First Church of the Brethren of Ashland, will speak each night.

Among the subjects he will discuss are "The Meaning of Church Membership," "Confession and Pardon," "Regeneration," and "The Fatal Night."

SET FOR TRIAL

15 Equity Cases on Common Pleas Docket This Week.

Hearing in common pleas court this morning of a suit involving four nickel-in-the-slot phonographs opened a schedule of 15 equity cases set for trial this week before Judge C. H. Huston.

The action, brought by the Rock-Ola Manufacturing company of Chicago against the A. C. Amusement company, Galion, seeks to recover the phonographs and $125 damages for the alleged illegal retention of them.

Scheduled for hearing Tuesday is an action to quiet the title to a property in Mansfield. John Seifley filed the suit against John Murphy and others.

Divorce and alimony cases make up most of the schedule which calls for hearings through Thursday.

BUYING NORMAL

'War Scare' Over, Downward Revision of Prices Seen.

Normal buying prevailed in Mansfield, groceries today, merchants reported, indicating that the week-long "buyers panic" was definitely ended.

As the buying subsided, grocerymen offered predictions that a downward revision of prices which soared as the demand increased, would follow.

Although the situation appeared less serious today, prices on sugar, flour and beans remained at the level set last Saturday, an increase of approximately 30 per cent above the previous week's prices. Small increase were also noticeable on other food stuffs which rose with the demand.

'RAINS CAME' WINS APPLAUSE OF TWO GOTHAM FILM CRITICS

New York motion picture critics were generally enthusiastic in their praise of the motion picture made from Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came."

One paper, the New York Times, sounded a critical note. So far only the New York papers and the News-Journal have commented on the picture, since it has been shown in no other cities. It was premiered Friday night here and in New York City.

The New York Times picture commentator, Frank S. Nugent, said of it:

"Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came" appears to have defied translation to the screen. The film version is the merest skeleton of the Bromfield work. . . . It is completely a romance now, and not the composite biography-romance-social treatise which became a best seller.

In trimming the novel down to romantic-script size, the adapters had no time for the preliminaries, the background work, the social comment that were the distinctive features of the book. . . . It is quite possible that no adaption could have covered the ground Mr. Bromfield took in his slow, literary strides."

Nugent agrees that it was a "visually thrilling spectacle, but frowns on the casting of the major characters, especially Myrna Loy who is, he says, too "sympathetic" a type to portray a hussy, and Tyrone Power who is "just Mr. Power."

Kate Cameron, of the New York Daily News, wrote: "The picture has a compelling quality. There is not a dull nor irritating moment throughout its length. . . . There was absolute quiet in the Roxy theater throughout the showing of the film, until the end, when the audience broke into appreciative applause.

"Besides assigning his own white-haired boy of the lot, Tyrone Power, to a leading role, and introducing one of his newest and lovelest ingenues, Brenda Joyce, Darryl Zanuck borrowed Myrna Loy from Metro and George Brent from Warners. Miss Loy gives a smooth performance . . . and George Brent plays, with great artistry, an English artist."

The Daily Mirror's Bland Johaneson said: "The real triumph of the picture is in the amazing flood and earthquake scenes. They have a power and quality of realness that even memories of "San Francisco" and "Hurricane" and all of the other disaster pictures cannot dim. The Rains Came" will probably be the last catastrophe picture for quite a while and it should be. Any more are bound to be anti-climaxes.

"The Rains Came" is a big picture and worth anybody's money."

Reviews by critics of other New York newspapers were not available here today.

Polish Women Sew Cotton 'Gas Masks' for Children

Mothers Tell Kiddies To Pull Crude Devices Over Faces In Raids; Effectiveness Doubtful

(By United Press)

AMSTERDAM—Warsaw is a city almost without gas masks, but Polish mothers have taken their needles and thread and made an ingenious attempt to save the lungs of their children from being choked and burned by poison gas.

Eric Calcraft, a British photographer, told about it today when he arrived here after a stay in Warsaw—his head filled with "burning memories" of the attempts of women to save their children.

Use Cotton, Gauze.

The women took large hunks of cotton or gauze and sewed elastic bands to them. Then they hung these crude gas masks around the children's necks and told them to pull the cotton up over their noses and mouth at the first gas alarm.

It is doubtful whether the home made masks would be of any use, but it is the best that mothers can do and they must do something.

Calcraft left Warsaw on Sept. 4, before the Germans were pressing as hard against the Polish capital as they are now, but he said when he arrived here today that he would never forget the scenes of terror he saw.

"My one big burning memory of Warsaw," he said, "was of seeing women go mad while looking for their children after an air raid. The Germans used big explosive and incendiary bombs.

"Some of the women searching for their children crawled on their stomachs like snakes. Others rushed blindly into burning buildings. Some of them mumbled, but others screamed at the top of their voices: 'My God, my babies.' I can't get those scenes out of mind."

Calcraft said the children were much calmer than their mothers. He said they stood in streets and doorways, calmly watching the airplanes come over and asking their parents how many persons had been killed or injured.

The Germans bombed the residential sections of Warsaw every hour on the hour from Sept. 1 to 4, according to Calcraft.

2 EX-MANSFIELDERS NOMINATED FOR JOURNALISM HALL OF FAME

Two former Mansfield men were among the four newspaper workers who were nominated today for the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame at Ohio State university.

Frank G. Carpenter, a native of this city, and Frank M. "Kim" Hubbard, who worked on the Mansfield News in the 1890's were two of the nominees. Brand Whitlock, U. S. war-time minister to Belgium, and Miss Ellen B. Scripps, were the other two.

One of the conditions of eligibility for the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame is that the candidate must have been dead for at least five years.

A "jury" of 75 newspapermen and historians is now balloting on the nominees. Those who receive a two-thirds vote will be elected.

Carpenter was born and raised in Mansfield, the son of George and Jeanette Carpenter, and was a brother of the late Reed Carpenter and Mrs. S. E. Findley. Mrs. John Hattery and Mrs. E. H. Hartman, Mansfield, and Mrs. Amy Douglass, Cleveland, are nieces.

Carpenter, who died in 1924, began his newspaper work in Cleveland and later served as a legislative correspondent in Columbus and Washington. He became most widely known, however, for his history text books for high school students. Carpenter school in Mansfield was named for him, years after he had received his public school education in that building.

"Kim" Hubbard was born in Bellefontaine, but is frequently identified as a Mansfielder because he started his work on the Mansfield News and began cartooning here. He afterwards became one of the best known and best loved of American cartoonists when he created the "Abe Martin" character.

At various times he had worked on the Bellefontaine Examiner, the Indianapolis News and the Cincinnati Tribune.

Whitlock was a native of Urbana and before entering the diplomatic service, worked on newspapers in Toledo and the Chicago Herald. Miss Scripps was identified with the Cleveland Press and the Cincinnati Post and was a member of the family which organized the Scripps chain of newspapers.

If either Carpenter or Hubbard is elected to the hall of fame, he will be the second Mansfield newspaper man to be so distinguished. Two years ago the late William S. Cappeller, who founded the Mansfield News on March 7, 1885, was elected. Eleven men have thus far been elected. The nominations and election are sponsored by the school of journalism at Ohio State.

Bricker Appoints Wilmington G. O. P. Member To Cabinet.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Rep. Robert R. Bangham, Wilmington Republican, was appointed state finance director today by Gov. John W. Bricker, indicating to capitol sources that a special legislative session would not be held this year.

Appointment of Bangham to the $6,500-a-year cabinet post called for his resignation from the legislature where he was chairman of the house finance committee. Bricker said he had delayed filling the directorship pending a study of special session needs.

The position has been vacant since the resignation of William S. Evatt to become state tax commissioner.

WARSAW TO BE THE 'MADRID' OF EUROPEAN WAR?

Spanish Capital Once Saved Loyalists From Franco's Forces, Writer Recalls.

By CAPT. JOHN HOUSTON CRAIGE
U. S. Marine Corps, Retired.
(Written for International News Service)

NEW YORK—If the trend of events established in the past forty-eight hours persists, Warsaw may become the Madrid of the German-Polish war.

Madrid saved the Spanish civil war for the Loyalists at its start by unexpectedly throwing back for a loss the early thrusts of General Franco's forces. Warsaw, if it continues its desperate and successful resistance to the Nazis, may well save a large portion of the Polish army from destruction and give time to organize resistance that may yet bring the Prussian war machine to a halt.

As the situation now stands on the Polish front, Warsaw now occupies a position between two prongs of one of the nutcrackers of the German army, just where the jaws of the pincers ought to close.

Ever since Thursday afternoon the Nazis have been applying the pressure but the Polish capital is still holding out. As long as it remains in Polish hands the pincer-grip cannot shut completely, and two important groups of the German forces remain stalled, just as the most powerful engine is brought to a halt by a monkey-wrench in its cogs.

Intrinsically, Warsaw is not of any great strategic or military value. It lies in a flat country and is difficult to defend. Had the Poles followed the advice of the French military mission which is advising their general staff, they would have abandoned it, together with all of western Poland and forced the Nazis to come a long way to the east to fight.

Next Few Days Vital.

But matters did not work out that way. The Poles did not get out of their western provinces in time. The Nazis moved more quickly than was expected. And as it has developed that the continuance of the capital in Polish hands even for the next few days may prove a matter of life and death.

What makes Warsaw of such military importance in the present situation is that it stands at the junction of a dozen railroad lines and roads. Trains from west, east, north and south roar through its yards and stations. Here are all-important bridges and transfer-points. Many of the bridges have been badly damaged by air-bombs, but the Poles report that repairs have been made which enable traffic to move, although at slackened speed.

As long as Worsaw remains in the hands of its defenders, brigades and divisions of the Polish army from the west, which are now swarming eastward to escape the German trap can continue to move towards the open country and safety.

As nearly as can be estimated there are still in the neighborhood of ten Polish divisions in the vast German bag stretching from Poznan to Nadarzyn. That represents more than a hundred and fifty thousand fighting men with their equipment and artillery. And some of the divisions are among Poland's best.

If Warsaw can hold out three or four days more they may have a chance to escape, always providing the Germans do not close another pincers' jaws further to the east. If the city falls and the Germans win the railroad junctions contained within its defensive radius, then all Polish troops to its east are doomed.

"About everything that has been written about it has been silly and stupid," she declared. "Hitler and has friends were always very polite and charming with me. They treated me like a little girl and they laughed at the way I spoke German."

"I am a dancer, not a politician, and I don't know anything about politics. I'm glad to be home."

6,286 ENROLLED

Attendance at City Schools Up 189 Since Thursday.

Showing a gain of 189 pupils since last Thursday, Mansfield public school enrollment today had jumped to 6,286, only 17 less than last year.

The increase in the past four days represented pupils who entered school late. Others are expected to enroll this week, possibly boosting the total enrollment above last year's figures.

The present enrollment includes 514 first grade pupils and 113 children in special schools. Listed as special schools are those providing vocaton training or treatment of crippled or deaf pupils.

WIFE IN JAIL

Accused of Fatally Stabbing Husband After Quarrel Over Liquor.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Faced with a murder charge for allegedly stabbing her husband to death, Mrs. William Wright probably will be arraigned in court today, police said.

The couple argued when the victim, William Wright, 38, a service station attendant, reached for a glass of gin, and Mrs. Wright stabbed him twice in the chest, police said. He died in St. Luke's hospital a few hours later.

Tortures of Nervous Indigestion Relieved

"After What Vendol Did for Me I Believe It Will Help Anybody," she says. Had Suffered from Constipation for Years.

"Nervous indigestion; gas on the stomach when due to constipation!" Few people suffer greater misery than victims of this terrible affliction.

At times this constipated condition bloats the stomach out of all natural proportions, and the pains are sharp as knives. At other times, there is no pain, but the suffering is even harder to bear, for the stomach seems to contract and press up into the chest until the sufferer would give the worlds for one deep, satisfying breath. Vendol has been thanked by hundreds of men and women who say this famous Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine promptly relieves constipation, then satisfying relief follows from these troubles, and makes them feel like new people. Take for instance Mrs. Gurnee L. Sims of 149 W. Longview Ave., Columbus, Ohio, who says:

"I was a constant sufferer from constipation which often caused acid indigestion, and most everything I ate seemed to sour in my stomach, bloat me with gas, and make me feel as though I had a lump in my throat which I couldn't get rid of. Breath would be short, and my nerves so quivery that I couldn't half sleep. I was so uncomfortable. I would often wake up in the morning with a headache and so worn out I hated to start the day's work.

"So many people were praising Vendol that I got some and also a box of the little Vendol laxative tablets, and this treatment helped right from the start. I got wonderful relief from constipation then the acid indigestion, gas, cramps, pains, and nervousness passed off. I get restful sleep now and never awaken feeling as tired as the night before or with a headache. I feel like a new person and after what Vendol did for me, I believe it will help everyone suffering like I did."

Start on this famous medicine today. The Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & 4th Sts., will gladly tell you all about it without obligation. Vendol is sold and highly recommended by leading druggists everywhere.

CRIME TEARS ON + + + + +

CHAPTER I

Craig Madison liked cocktail parties.

He held that one could go to them without that feeling of responsibility which devolves on a guest at a dinner or a dance.

Not that Madison was a shirker. Upon occasion he gaily shouldered the onus of social duties and was the dependable holder-upper of many smart hostesses in their efforts at entertainment.

One lovely October day, at the hour of dusk, he dropped in at Amy Crosby's for a few moments and a few cocktails.

A gay greeting to Amy and then he was lost in the chattering crowd.

But Craig had a special faculty for sizing up a crowd and discovering quickly if it contained any people interesting to him. And failing, in the present instance, he was about to leave when across the room he saw an almost familiar face.

Trying to place it, he stared, and suddenly, he knew. It was Yvette Verne, the new film star that everybody was raving over. And the reason he didn't know her just at first, he told himself, was that she wore civilian dress. In her pictures she was usually in foreign scenes and bizarre costumes, but here, in the home of New York's society queens, and garbed in quiet tailored elegance, Yvette Verne was charming in her own right.

With practical skill he made his way through the massed humanity that separated them, and had almost reached her, when he suddenly found she had disappeared. He thought she had turned into a small alcove room near which she had stood, and he followed the trail.

A short corridor led to this room and as he stepped nearer he heard her voice, not loud, but tense with anger and, he thought, fright.

He heard her say, "—you are a brute and a cad. Leave this room, and never dare speak to me again."

He couldn't listen deliberately, and he half turned away, when he heard the man's voice, raised a trifle and speaking in menacing tones.

"Yes, I'll go now; we don't want a scene here. But you'll take back every word you've said, you'll beg my forgiveness, you'll crave my pardon, you'll grovel at my feet—"

"Go! If you speak another word to me I shall scream!"

"Don't be silly!" And with a light laugh the man came out of the little room and left the girl there.

Madison had stepped back, and then came on as if just appearing. But the other paid no attention to him, and passed him without a glance.

Then, giving free rein to his eager curiosity, Craig Madison walked straight into the little room where the actress stood, still quivering with fury.

"Talk to me a few minutes," he said, smiling at her; "it'll help you to get yourself collected—and somebody may drift in here any minute."

"Do I know you?" and the big dark eyes looked at him, but not reprovingly.

"You will, very soon. I'm Craig Madison, and something tells me you are Yvette Verne."

"And what if I am?" a flashing smile showed him her dimples.

"Only that now we're friends, and I want you to forget the late unpleasantness somebody wished on you. But you're calm already."

"Yes; that wretch was Billy Gomez, and while he is a pest, he's not worth worrying about. But it will take a few minutes to regain my temper, and my good looks." She produced a vanity gadget and put it to use.

Madison leaned against the door jamb and watched her.

His acquaintance with artists of the screen was limited; he seldom cared to meet the lesser lights and few of the stars had come his way.

Yvette Verne was one of his favorites and he admired her acting for the art it displayed. Naturalness was all very well, but it took art to put it over, in his opinion.

And he liked her because she was dark. Bisque-doll blondes had begun to pall on him and the brunette beauty of this girl seemed to him a shady wood after a glaring sunlit beach.

She made short work of her cosmetics, and raised her finished face from the tiny mirror in which she had been gazing.

"Better?" she asked, as she put the little implements in their case.

"Unnecessary, from my point of view, but I daresay you feel more fully dressed."

"Yes, I do. And more complacent, too. That man did stir me up, but you are a born anodyne."

"Not a compliment I care for. I can be a stimulant, if you like. May I?"

"Not just now. I have a business engagement I must keep."

"Are you making a picture now?"

"No, indeed, I've a two-months layoff, and I'm living my own life."

For the next few moments Madison forgot the girl was there. He was weighing arguments on a finely adjusted mental scale. Uncle Harley? He'd simply love it. Aunt Cornelia? She was always persuadable and ready to do her part. Sheldon? None of his business, anyhow.

The scale swung in favor of the plan that was rapidly taking shape, and without further consideration, Craig put it into words.

"I say, how'd you like to come out to our place for a bit?"

"A bit of what?"

"Oh, fun, rest, recreation, whatever you're most in need of."

"What makes you think I'm in need of anything?"

"Everybody's in need of something, though he may not know it. But just for a lark, take a chance and come out for a week-end. How about it?"

* * *

Craig Madison was very good looking, an attribute which took him far. Although nearly thirty, he had a boyish cajolery which oftener than not brought him what he wanted.

"Where is out?" she continued.

"Oh, my home. You'll hate it, it's a fearful place, but it will be better soon. And our week-ends are fun. Do say you'll come!"

"But where is it? Is it in America?"

"Oh, that. Why, yes, it's on Long Island."

"What part of Long Island? Is it a secret?"

"No—though it ought to be. It's up in the bleak northern reaches of Queens county, and it's—"

"Haunted?"

"Not that I know of! It's a lovely place. Silver Hill, you know. The paradise spot of the whole map!"

"Your stories don't hang together. When do you want me to come?"

"Friday, the very next Friday you meet. I'll come in and fetch you."

"Oh, no, you won't. I'll go in my own car. What have you in the line of family?"

Craig looked comically distressed.

"Formidable," he said, "quite so."

"You don't scare me at all. I eat up formidable people. A wife?"

"You know I haven't! Do I talk like a married man? But there's an uncle of certain disturbing ways and uncertain temper. There's an aunt, of great resource and sagacity, but who would include you out if for any reason my uncle didn't take to you."

"How can he help taking to me?" she asked, saucily. "Is he under his wife's thumb?"

"Oh, my aunt isn't my uncle's wife, they're brother and sister. And I've a cousin there, a chap about my age, but better—mannered. And a secretary, with whom you must not fall in love. And a housekeeper who is a scream. That's our ill-assorted family. Only a few people are coming this week-end; I doubt if you know any of them. Shall I ask Amy Crosby?"

"Oh, please not. Amy's a dear, but your list is long enough. I hate big house parties. Don't tell me about the people, I like to puzzle them out myself. But tell me of the house. It must be a big one."

"It is—enormous. And a conglomeration of all the worst styles of architecture ever invented by man. And added to here and there by the successive Madisons who have lived in it. We are the Montauk Madisons, you know—a fact dear to the heart of Uncle Harley."

"Do you mean Harley Madison, the eccentric philanthropist?"

"Is that what they call him? Well, it is descriptive."

"But he's a great man! A celebrity in his own right."

"And may I not have a celebrity for an uncle, if I choose?"

"Of course. Is he nice?"

"He's a brick! A splendid all round man. Gets mad on every possible occasion, and forgets next moment what he was mad about. Then you'll come on Friday?"

"Yes, of course. What is uncle doing now, in a big way?"

"Too big to tell about. But you may as well have an idea, for if you want to make good with him, you must talk about himself."

"Tell me, then."

"Well, this is his present enterprise. We live in a thinly settled, sprawling hamlet named, grandiosely, New Plymouth. The place hasn't kept up with the march of progress, nor has it noticed the tearing on of time. It didn't have proper care and feeding, and yet it is a possible paradise. One day, my uncle saw this, and decided he was the one to rescue the poor little waif, and fix it all up nice and pretty like Cinderella. There are some few big houses, you understand, and some few influential men, who, uncle assumed, would help him with his project. Of course, anything Harley Madison has charge of is flaw-proof—angle iron, sunk hinge construction, and a guaranteed money-maker."

"Didn't the few men in the place realize this?"

"Most of them; but there are those who say Madison is lining his own pockets at the expense of all others concerned."

"But your uncle is big enough to combat and conquer all such ideas."

"Would be, if he were let alone. But in a multitude of counsellors there is trouble, and uncle is bothered to death with his enemies. I tell you so you'll be kind to him, when your own tact advises you to do so; and you'll let him alone, when he wants to be let alone. That's the whole secret of dealing with his somewhat all-of-a-sudden disposition."

"Glad you told me. Can I help in any way?"

"I doubt it. Uncle doesn't want money, nor advice, nor assistance. But he does want sympathy. So if you could be his understanding little friend it might give him a big of real pleasure, and it would constitute your good act for the day."

"Of course I'll do anything I can, but I'm staying only a day or two, and you can't establish sympathetic relations in a few minutes."

"I suppose not. Don't let it bother you. See that chap who just came in?"

"The one with the grave, studious face? Yes, I know, he's Fleming Stone. How I'd love to meet him!"

"Seems to me that for a film queen, who is chased round by cameramen and polite, deferential autograph-hunters, you are unduly interested in making new acquaintances. But Stone is a worthwhile friend to meet, because he always remembers you, and that means if you ever need him he'll be at your service."

"At my service! I thought he was a detective!"

"He is. But isn't it among the possibilities that you may some day need the services of a detective?"

"Possibly, but not probably. We can't catch Mr. Stone now, though; see, he's going away. You must introduce him to me some other time. And I must go now. Are you staying in town?"

"What for? We consider Manhattan a suburb of New Plymouth, but not a fit place to live in. Shall I tell you how to reach us on Friday?"

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1939.

Idleness is an acquired habit—it is not natural to normal childhood.

Consoling thought: If Columbus—or someone else—hadn't discovered America, most of us would be in the midst of the European embroilment.

United States Need Not Enter War

UNLESS emotions, rather than judgment, are permitted to influence and direct the course of this nation during coming days, weeks and months, the United States CAN keep out of the renewed European war.

If propaganda can be recognized as such, and if facts can be identified and considered in a dispassionate way, a neutral course for America would be comparatively simple—just as it might have been in the early stages of the World war if calm judgment instead of flaring passions had directed the attitude of the United States toward European affairs at that time.

The heterogeneity of population in the United States, with widely diversified views strongly influenced by ancestry, places this country in a peculiarly dangerous position in the matter of sympathetic interest in the welfare of various European nations.

When it is argued that the United States had no course other than to get into the World war it should not be lost sight of that Switzerland, Holland, Spain and the Scandinavian countries maintained neutrality through that war, despite their proximity, and that several of them continued to sell merchandise, including foodstuffs, to both sides without being drawn into the conflict.

If it is to be the attitude of the United States that national duty requires policing of the world and determining policies and practices for all other countries, then there must be a build-up of a military establishment of sufficient strength to carry through such a program.

But if it should be decided that Uncle Sam has a sufficient job on his hands to look after his own affairs, without meddling in Europe's recurrent clashes, there should be no greater need than for adequate defenses against unlikely foreign invasion.

If the United States is drawn into the war now in progress in Europe it will be through actions resulting from mistaken notions of obligations that do not exist.

Great improvements have been made in implements of war—but instincts of primitive mankind remain unchanged.

Visualize American System

THIS YEAR America is being treated to two great world's fairs, at New York and San Francisco. Millions of citizens are visiting them. And to the thoughtful visitor these fairs must appear as a great deal more than colorful and exciting shows—they are living testimonials to an economic system based on the freest possible play of individual initiative and enterprise.

At the great industrial exhibits at the fairs you will see vividly presented the achievements which are responsible for our American standard of living, the highest by far in the entire world. Out of the work of millions of hands and brains, working in a free society, has come this epochal progress. Electric power, radio, railroad, automobile, clothing—every exhibit is a monument to the American system—private enterprise.

It is fitting that the two fairs should be in operation at this time. For, to an extent never before known, this American system has been under attack. The greatest achievements of private industry have been minimized. The very foundation stones of democracy have been undermined. Individualism has been held up to scorn and ridicule. Business has been reviled. Back of this campaign against the American system is a determined attempt to put in its place a system based upon some foreign "ism."

A movement is on foot to organize taxpayers—which sounds as if the underdog is preparing to growl.

Time to Renew Driver's License

MOTORISTS can now secure their new driver's license, which they are required to have by October 1.

While general laxity in enforcement of traffic laws in Ohio has encouraged some motorists to feel that they can drive without a license, the fact is that an unwise chance is being taken by driving in this or another state without a license, on account of complications sure to arise in the event of a minor accident.

Although not as drastic as license provisions in many other states, the Ohio drivers' license law has at least marked a start in the right direction and it can be strengthened as quickly as public sentiment approves.

Principal weakness apparent in the present law is the ease with which persons with physical or mental deficiencies are granted licenses on the basis of previous driving experience, without examination as to their competency.

Ohio does not rank well among the states in its record of traffic accidents, or in its requirement for safe driving. Leniency of laws and laxity of enforcement goes far in explaining this situation.

Inquiry is being made for the old-fashioned girl who saw her boy friend only on Wednesday and Saturday nights.

Forgotten Money In Banks

BANKS in New York state report having 15,831 unclaimed savings deposits, accounts which have been dormant for fifteen years. No additions or withdrawals have been made in that time. Mostly the owners or their heirs are lost, although the banks regularly make efforts to trace them.

The total sum involved is $1,712,217. That is a very small fraction of the state's total of more than five billions, yet a tidy sum to be overlooked.

Most of the accounts are small, but one of more than $8,000 suggests that carelessness about money is not limited to the people with only a few dollars in the bank.

Banks in other states also have their share of unclaimed deposits. In fact, the United States treasury has a lot of them in the form of bonds which have been called for redemption and on which interest is no longer paid.

Progress is reported in removing pain from painless dentistry—but many children still prefer going to a picture show.

Adolf Hitler should be about due for a strikeout in the League of Nations world series.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The name of this column is Man-About-Manhattan, and boy, am I glad I don't write Man About Rome. . . . Look what I just read in the papers—a dispatch from Rome, from Rome, Italy . . . It says no coffee . . . It says the civilians can't drink any coffee anymore. It's all being saved for the army. . . . Roman newspapermen can't duck across the street and say, "Joe, gimme a cup of coffee." . . . Well, they wouldn't say Joe anyway. They would probably say Tony.

But one of the jobs about writing a New York column is that you can go out and drink coffee at odd hours . . . Hours are very odd here anyway. And frequently the coffee is too. But not if you know your way around. Like bankers and lawyers, you've got to know which restaurants to place your faith in too.

A lot of people think you are off-balance if you place too great a premium on the quality of a simple, every day beverage. But people like that have a twisted sense of values. I am convinced that only heroes and poets and people who have understanding hearts can appreciate the subtle influence that wafts itself like some faint, nostalgic aromatic splendor from the cup to the nostrils. It heartens the dismayed, lends succor to the flagged in spirit, brings clarity to the vision, and joy to the oppressed. Such are the benefits of a cup of good coffee. Man About Rome? I'd rather be a Latin from Manhattan any day.

A MAN in Texas wants to know if the fight game as a whole is crooked, and whether the important bouts are fixed. No, they aren't. Not the big fights anyway. There was a time, I suppose, when the big gamblers did have a hand in "fixing" some of the important battles, but I never knew anything of these transactions personally.

It is safe to say that all of the big fights held in New York are on the level. There are no doubt many unscrupulous managers and fighters who look for easy money in the smaller, tank circuits, but I would say that they are not emblematic of boxing, as a craft, and that they certainly will never rise to the big time. Too much is at stake here for that. The boxing managers who handle the stars, and the near stars, the challengers, etc., are too much in the public eye. Their activities are to closely scrutinized. Even if they could be 'bought" the chances are their good sense would cause them to decide against it, because once anything like that comes up about you, you are through.

BOXING, like every other field, has its crooks and its double-dealers. There are those who would put the "fix" on even themselves, but who are they and where are they? They don't amount to anything here. They have no "in," no authority, no position. If they did they wouldn't have to resort to the "fix."

As for big gamblers in the scenario manner directing, beforehand, the outcome of fights, that only happens in the Hollywood movies. It's thrilling stuff in the films, because in the end virtue always triumphs. But, unfortunately, when you get away from fiction, you get away from the fixers too.

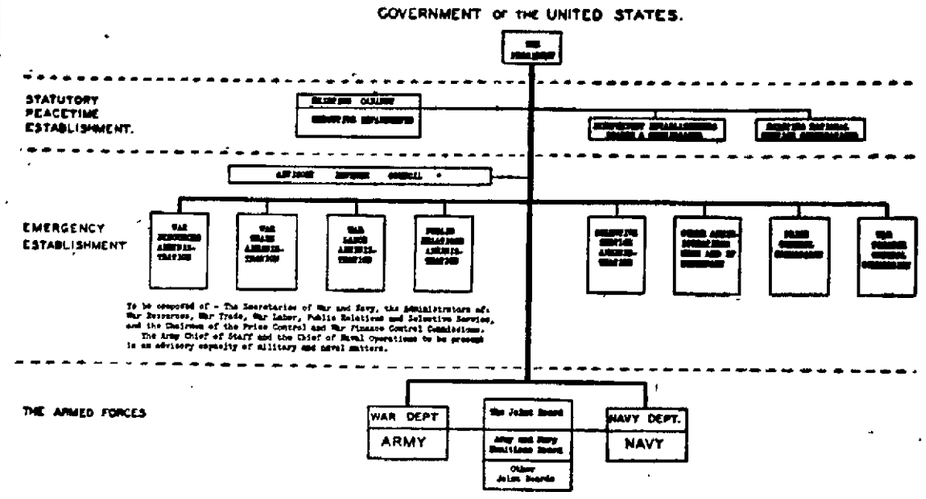
Virtual Dictatorship Necessary To War

WAR PLANS AND POLICIES BEING MADE READY



Farm Outlook Brightened By War

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Virtually every plan of Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, has gone out the window as a result of the war in Europe. Demand for every conceivable food product, and incidentally even for cotton, has changed the whole picture. Even since the war broke out the A. A. A. experts on wheat insisted that the expected demand did not justify an increase in wheat acreage for next season. But there will be.

Everybody who has ever had many dealings with farmers knows what will happen. With an advancing price and crisp demand, Mr. Farmer will plant more—even if he knew the whole world was doing the same thing. There might, he always reasons, be a famine somewhere else in the world. In fact, he may not reason that much. He just knows that buyers want his wheat and are willing to pay him a higher price than he has been getting, so he gets busy.

No farmer ever approved the crop curtailment program—for his own farm. Some of them think it is a good idea for the other fellow. But most of them don't even go that far. They are old-fashioned in their economics. Used to dealing with nature, they like to follow nature's own plan of providing a lot more of everything than could possibly be used—like fish eggs, for instance.

BUT this time the farmers will be right, if the best military and naval experts this country has are right. For this war, the experts calculate, will stretch on and on. Five years, most of them are saying. This will mean, assuming this pessimistic view is right, that the rest of the world will have its hands full feeding the fighting men, not to mention the men, women and children back of the firing lines, and will be too busy with providing munitions and other war supplies to spend much time plowing.

Before this disaster broke upon a dreading world, the agricultural outlook was very dark indeed. Hence the various plans under incubation at the department of agriculture. The corn crop, plus the carry-over, was a nightmare. The same with wheat. Cotton was even worse, especially with Brazilian production, and that in other parts of the world, mounting steadily, and with foreign production costs far less than that in any state east of the Mississippi.

In its September business letter the National City bank said: "One aspect of the situation which has disturbed business observers is the low price of farm products, notably the grains, hogs and fats and oils. The outlook has been improved during August by the rally in wheat prices, and it is likely that the pessimism as to wheat was overdone, inasmuch as the government loan, on the basis of 80 cents at Chicago, was always certain to help the market as more wheat began to move into the loan stock. But the hog supply for the coming months is admittedly of depressing size and the supply of fats and oils is above normal, with lard and cottonseed oil both selling recently at the lowest prices in five years. Dairy and poultry products are lower than last year."

THIS was written, of course, before the outbreak of war. It was written when most people did not expect war. Yet the very upturn in wheat mentioned was probably due more to buying by people who did believe in the danger of war than any government loan factor.

Next year's crops, assuming good weather, will probably be prodigious. But, if war continues, they will be badly needed and prices will not be low. The real problem will come, as it came after the last war, when the war demand suddenly ends.

Listen, World!

Teach Youth Its Place in Life.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOUTH, as usual, on our Monday rostrum. This time with a protest which will arouse many an adult cheer. You maybe think, Mom and Dad, that Junior and Sis aren't getting much out of the High School years? Mary Donner, of Seattle, Wash., knows they aren't . . . gives her close-up, youthful slant on WHAT'S WRONG WITH OUR AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM. It's straight-thinking, hard-hitting stuff by which many a Bulging Brow might profit. Listen!

"Dear Elsie—

"I do believe that we young people might work a great reform in American education . . . and prevent many an after-graduation tragedy . . . if older people would listen to us. After all, we should know better than anyone else what's wrong — SINCE WE HAVE BEEN THE UNFORTUNATE GUINEA-PIGS IN THE WHOLE MALADJUSTED PROGRAM.

"What does the average modern youngster need to learn most from the day he enters kindergarten to the day he leaves High School? Does he need to learn philosophical theories . . . classical formulas . . . cut and dried facts? He does not. You can stuff him with facts and theories and he will still be a failure unless he has learned the one, most important thing—WHAT LIFE IS LIKE . . . WHAT HIS OWN ADJUSTMENT TO IT SHOULD BE.

"If schools would stop worrying about grades and credits and would bend their energies to teaching the relationship between actual life and book wisdom, there'd be a revolution all along the line.

Never has Youth been so hard pressed by grim heality. The speed and pressure which have quickened the whole tempo of life have stortened our period of carefree childhood. We must 'get out and get under' very early in the game. And the old educational programs which suited our plodding grandpas are useless for us today.

"We need to learn how to develop our personalities . . . far more than we need to read classical English.

"We need information about careers and marriage—not only its emotional side but the whole psychology of married partnership, the adjustments to be made, the business aspects, etc.

"Also there are all sorts of things we should know about ourselves . . . how to dress . . . how to act . . . how to make friends . . . physical and mental hygiene, etc. These have far more to do with our modern success than a knowledge of Greek Art or Russian dancing.

"IN SHORT, WE NEED TO KNOW THE VARIOUS OPPORTUNITIES OFFERED AND DEMANDS MADE BY THIS NEW WORLD . . . A WORLD WHICH WAS NEVER GLIMPSED IN THE CLASSROOMS OF 1909.

"Many of us have talents for work which we do not even know exists. Someone should tell us about that work . . . how to develop and 'sell' those talents. There are a few Vocational Advisers—but there should be many, many more experienced, mellowed men and women to show us how to make the best of ourselves . . . how to put ourselves across.

"For example, one of the leading careers of today is Social Service. But how many schools teach anything about it? How many train us for home economics? Or look at the 'commercial courses' in most High Schools. Not one graduate in 100 can accept a regular stenographer's position without taking a supplementary course in some Business College.

"YOUNG PEOPLE ARE STILL BEING PREPARED FOR A WORLD WHICH PASSED INTO CHAOS IN 1914!

"I believe modern schools should eliminate 'grades' entirely . . . cut out most of the conventional examinations . . . and let the students advance according to their individual progress and desire. After all, our school 'credits' have little to do with actual life. Some of the worst failures in real life had the highest marks in school. As things are now, initiative, talent and enthusiasm are penalized in most places.

"Let's knock down the antiquated prejudices and ideas which keep school in the same class as museums . . . and turn them into sources of life for those who are battling to make life a cleaner, kinder, more courageous affair!

Mary Donner—age 23

What's your reaction—whether you're youngster or oldster — to Mary's protest and plan? This column would like to know—and possibly print—your come-back.

Hunting Antiques.

While there may be marked contempt in some modern circles for that which is old-fashioned it is gratifying to note that there is a hearty and growing enthusiasm for many things which are distinctly in this class.

Today the hunting of antiques has become a science, a religion, an art and a consuming passion for thousands. The country is being gone over with a fine tooth comb by collectors searching for rare objects which may be found in homes.

Of course, the collecting of antiques embraces a widely diversified field, but many a modern home is given dignity, beauty and character through the quiet and reserved effectiveness of furniture that was new when the nation was young and when fine wood instead of chrome-plated gaspipes was utilized for furniture construction.—Ohio State Journal.

How It Started

"Variety Is the Spice of Life."

Nero, tired of the last and eager of the new, would execute his wife or a court favorite,—who would always be quickly followed by another short-lived recipient of his honors.

In explanation of his passion for changes of loves and company, Nero is said to have remarked something like "Varietas delectat", but we do not believe that this "the story of today's suckful."

Publius Syrus' maxim number 400, "No pleasure endures unseasoned by variety," sound a bit warmer; but a pertinent line from The Tonepiece by Cowper is positively hot.

It reads:

"Variety's the very spice of life."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—What the United States is in for if it should get embroiled in war can be gathered from the "Industrial Mobilization Plan" which has been prepared by the army.

Under this plan, Roosevelt's hard-fought New Deal reforms will be pretty much scrapped. Instead all-powerful controls are to be established which virtually constitute a dictatorial form of government.

Industry will welcome with hallelujahs the end of the National Labor Relations Board and the finish of the Wage-Hour Act, but it will not get much kick out of other regulations which make General Johnson's NRA resemble a kindergarten.

The Industrial Mobilization Plan, it is interesting to note, was drawn up during the Hoover administration by Patrick J. Hurley's war department in 1931. Congress passed a resolution authorizing such a plan at the time.

Although modified and amended since then, the basic structure remains the same under Roosevelt.

How far it goes toward dictatorship frankly was admitted in the foreword of the 1936 version of the plan which read:

"The objective of any warring nation is victory, immediate and complete. It is conceivable that a war might be conducted with such great regard for individual justice and administrative efficiency as to make impossible those evils whose existence in past wars is well known. It is also conceivable that the outcome of a war so conducted might be defeat. In all plans for preparedness and policies to be pursued in event of war it must never be overlooked that while efficiency in war is desirable, effectiveness is mandatory."

This candid declaration was toned down for 1939 and this more reassuring statement was made instead: "This Plan does not propose the modification of any of our Constitutional processes. Indeed, the prime purposes of procurement planning and of the Industrial Mobilization Plan is the preservation of these processes for the people of the United States."

But an examination of the various basic features of the Industrial Mobilization Plan shows clearly that business, finance, agriculture, labor, prices, press, communications—all are to be controlled.

The Plan.

HEART of the new mobilization machine is eight mighty emergency agencies which will be the real rulers of the country. The cabinet merely sits on the sidelines. It will function only as the president's "advisory body for normal activities. His cabinet officers . . . co-operate with the war agencies." In other words, the cabinet will give way to an "Advisory Defense Council" which will dominate the administration. This is stated clearly and specifically:

"The Advisory Defense Council is the president's special war ministry. Its functions are to aid and advise the president in all matters pertaining to the prosecution of the war. It co-operates under the general supervision of the president to control and direct the combatant, economic, and moral forces of the nation in waging the war."

The Council.

UNDER this Advisory Defense Council come eight potent agencies as follows:

War Resources Administration, which will direct the productive machinery of the country. The present War Resources Board, headed by 47-year-old Edward R. Stettinius, jr., of the U. S. Steel Corp., is a training school for the War Resources Administration. In the event of war the WRA would absorb the WIB and become the No. 1 control agency of the government, next to the president in power.

War Trade Administration, which will control all exports and imports, negotiate trade agreements and do everything necessary to "further the economic isolation of the enemy."

War Labor Administration, which will control labor relations and take measures to provide the essential war industries with adequate and peaceful labor supplies. It will supersede the Labor Board, Wage-Hour Administration, Conciliation Service, Women's and Children's Bureaus and set up a new Conciliation & Adjustment Service with the power to prevent and settle strikes and to set aside existing child labor laws.

"While the employment of children under the age of 16 years in industry and agriculture will be avoided wherever possible," says the Plan, "it must be recognized from the beginning that the nature of the emergency may require such employment in its later stages. . . ."

Public Relations Administration, (in other words, censorship) will "coordinate and direct the national publicity activities so as to insure that the purposes, views and progress of the government in prosecution of the war are properly and adequately presented to the people and that the aid of public opinion is enlisted to the fullest possible extent in behalf thereof."

The Selective Service Administration will direct conscription of man-power for the army forces.

The Price Control Commission will be a quasi-judicial body with power to fix prices, regulate profits, and establish wage scales. Its decisions will be issued in the name of the President and will have the effect of law.

The War Finance Control Commission will have power to control stock and bond issues and other forms of private investments.

The two other key agencies, still in nebulous form will control fuel, coal, power, transportation and other industries not covered by the other agencies.

The Aim.

FIRST objective of the plan is the creation, equipment and furnishing of adequate supplies for an "Army of 1,000,000 men six months after the country enters a war."

To this end some 10,000 factories have been designated as key plants and a corps of specially trained officers has been established to act as liaison between the army and these concerns. Every one of the 10,000 plants has been instructed what to do to change to military production in the event of war.

To train these factories the army has been giving them so-called "educational" orders. Last year $2,000,000 was spent for this purpose, and this year congress upped the fund to $16,500,000.

Shore of Lake Erie

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STOOD on a high bank along the southern shore of Lake Erie. A strong north wind was blowing, and I saw the heavy white caps move in the distance like flocks of small white restless birds upon the water. Away out in the green-blue line where the pale sky touched the waters, they seemed to start, then heaving up and down they rolled across the belt of green, of blue, of lighter brown that banded the shore, and broke in spray, with a booming sound upon the rocks below me. Their coming in brought color and sound and motion from the cool depths into a warm, quiet autumn day.

Out in the distance, even beyond the skyline, I saw the faint smoke of an approaching vessel. So slowly it appeared to move I wondered if it really was a ship. Nearer at hand another sailed westward. White spray wreathed its bow and the sunshine glistened on its massive flank of steel. From where I stood I could hear no sound as it glided through the waves. Across this trackless waste man has made his highway, over which is borne the richest commerce of our land.

I came down from the commanding view by a steep rugged path, sliding on the rolling gravel. An unsuspected wave moved high above the rest and drenched my feet and ankles. I took off my shoes and stood upon the sand. As each wave moved across and then receded, I felt the sand pull from beneath my soles as though something living struggled to get free.

Some granite boulders had grown thick long shreds of grayish moss that trailed far down around the sides like tresses. The rolling waves had worn bare their tops, until they lay like skulls, their hoary locks combed constantly by the restless waters.

The level shelf of shore at the base of the bank was pitted with little sandy pools and edged with shells of myriads of tiny creatures. From one pool I picked up a waveworn piece of cedar with a wrought iron bolt that had almost rusted through. Perhaps, I mused, this might have been a vital part of Commander Perry's flagship drifted here after more than a century. I threw it back into the water not wishing to pry into any secret that the mighty lake had held so long.

FRENCH, GERMAN TROOPS LOCK IN SEE-SAW BATTLE

Paris Claims 'Local Advance' While Berlin Says French Suffer Heavy Losses.

end of the line from the Saar basin, where French troops staged their first advance.

Action generally appeared to be gaining in intensity.

Identity of the forces involved remained a military secret.

It was believed that by now the British expeditionary force also had had time to take battle positions.

Operations, which were confined largely to contact by advance guards on both sides during the first week of the war, were reported to be involving reinforced bodies of troops as the second week of the campaign was launched.

Movements also were broadening out, with whole woods, heights and villages at stake, where earlier operations were aimed against front line trenches and pill boxes.

Aerial scouts who had been following German movements also brought back reports that German troop movements in the Saar area were "bothered" by French raids on communication lines.

Reports from the eastern front said the Polish forces were reforming their lines along the middle portion of the Vistula river. There, Franch advices said, "the situation seems less grave."

Paris again had an early morning aid raid alarm, attributed to a German scouting raid in which the planes failed to reach the capital.

Premier Daladier, meanwhile, proceeded with the formation of a war-time cabinet.

In the "no-man's land" between the French Maginot and the German Siegfried lines, German forces were reported staging a strong counter-attack. The brunt of the offensive was at the triangle formed by the junction of the Moselle and Saar rivers, on the extreme northern flank of the western front

Register Deep Advance.

It is here the French were believed to have registered their deepest advance into German territory.

The French forces were reported holding fast at this point, where the Germans were attacking from the shelter of the coal mine shafts of the Saar basin. Fifty miles to the southeast, according to a general staff communique, they were staging a fresh advance.

On the economic home front, Paul Reynaud, minister of finance, told the nation that "Germany already has been used up to a large measure by the gigantic effort she made to prepare for war. Economically and financially Germany already is very vulnerable. On this front Germany has no fresh troops."

He said that France, in contrast, had gone into action "under economic conditions very superior to the enemy."

While popular attention was rivited on the reports from the western front, Germany's new relations with Soviet Russia engaged far more attention in official quarters in Berlin.

News of the mobilization of Russian reservists was welcomed, but even greater stress was placed on plans of military leaders for resuming railway communications between the Reich and the Soviets.

Banks on Russia.

Germany has counted on Russia to supply a considerable share of raw materials with which to carry on the war.

The Baltic sea route now is open and completely in control of the German navy. With Poland eliminated as a state which could interfere with land shipments, German strategists laid great weight to the value of the rail connection between Germany and Russia in event the sea route was cut by the British navy.

The contention of all German government quarters was that with friendly Russia at hand it would be impossible to starve Germany into submission.

Canada's decision to enter the war beside Britain occasioned no surprise in Berlin.

Commenting upon predictions of an early collapse of Polish resistance, one German spokesman said:

"Now is the moment for a competent political leader in Poland to arise, bring control to a demoralized situation and come to a realistic, just understanding with Germany."

German Advances In Poland

This map shows how the German advances in Poland has progressed. The shaded area is the territory captured by Nazi troops. Now on the outskirts of Warsaw, the Nazis have launched a drive from the south against Lwow, hoping to cut off Poland's avenue of supplies from friendly Rumania.

STARTS 'WAR FUND'

OTTAWA, Ont.—(U.P.)—The Canadian government today notified parliament that it proposes to raise an immediate "war fund" of $100,000,000 to carry on the war against Germany.

Parliament met today to consider the budget proposals, after the formal declaration of war yesterday.

SENDS TROOP TO BRITAIN

LONDON—(U.P.)—New Zealand will be the first of the British Dominions to send an expeditionary force to Europe, an official of the New Zealand high commissioner's office said today. The first unit will total 6,000 men, it was said.

FRANCO TAKES STEPS

PARIS —(U.P.)— Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish Nationalist leader, is ordering all German civilians including mining engineers from the French border zone as part of his neutrality policy, it was understood today.

RUMANIA PREPARES

BUCHAREST —(U.P.)— Rumania redoubled defense preparations today in fear that she might be drawn into the war if Hungary or Bulgaria tries to regain territory lost to her in the World war.

tablishment of three depots to put into effect the "contraband control" system by which she hopes to cut off supplies to Germany.

After a lull in Baltic sea operations, Germany reported her land and sea forces were ocoperating in a campaign to take Gdynia, Poland's only seaport. Gdynia already is cut off from the rest of Poland, but its capture would wipe out the last resistance in the north.

Blow to Germany.

The German army's announcement of fighting on the western front was a blow to popular hopes in Germany that peace might yet be negotiated with France.

It appeared in Berlin that German propaganda efforts still were being directed toward telling the French not to take the war too seriously and at trying to weaken the British-French alliance in the same way London and Paris hope to persuade Italy to refrain from helping Germany.

Paris underwent its fourth air raid alarm, but no raiders appeared.

Premier Daladier, preparing a war cabinet, conferred with Marshal Henri Petain.

Canada offered her resources to Britain after declaring yesterday a "state of war with the German reich."

Her Sunday declaration lined Canada up with Australia, New Zealand and the union of South Africa in supporting the mother country.

ORDER 'MEATLESS DAYS'

SOFIA, Bulgaria, —(AP)— Wednesdays and Fridays were designated "meatless days" today after the Bulgariaan cabinet forbade the slaughter of animals and the sale of meat.

POLES CLAIM NAZI WARSAW DRIVE HALTED

Radio Report Says Germans Retreat From Suburbs of Besieged Capital.

tile center about 70 miles southwest of Warsaw, although a brief special report yesterday announced it had been captured.

The Warsaw radio said German bombs had fallen in Pilsudski square which is ringed by the War ministry, foreign ministry, Warsaw military headquarters and the hotel Ueropjski where many foreigners stayed before war started.

The fragmentary report, interrupted by static, said a large number of persons were in the square, but did not mention casualties.

German radio announcements picked up in Budapest declared that annihilation of Polish forces was "nearing the end" and that "many encircled troops already are beginning to surrender."

Germans announced the continued bombing of highways between Lublin and Lwow on the main route from Warsaw to Rumania. While there probably are some troop movements along these highways, they also are thronged with refugess seeking safety.

Start Drive on Lwow.

It was reported from Budapest that German planes, tanks and big guns were massing for a concentrated drive on Lwow (Lemberg) today in an effort to cut Poland's line of communications with Rumania, its sole avenue for supplies, by capturing the capital of the Polish Ukraine.

The rapid turn of events left the location of the Polish government in doubt. One report here said headquarters had been moved to Krzemieniec, 250 miles southeast of Warsaw and almost on the border of Soviet Russia. Other reports said the government had gone from Lublin to Lwow, and was moving eastward from there.

As Warsaw dug in for its fourth day of siege by a German force that launched more than 40 air raids and countless tank attacks yesterday, the radio station at Lwow, 210 miles to the southeast, instructed the city's defenders to dig trenches and erect street barricades.

There were indications the German drive already had started. Throughout the broadcast from Lwow, sirens could be heard sounding air raid alarms.

It appeared, Lwow, one of the chief industrial centers in southeastern Poland, was to be subjected to the same sort of battering that has taken place at the gates of Warsaw since the German forces reached there last Friday.

The Polish general staff's communique No. 10, broadcast from Warsaw last night, reported German air bombing continued relentlessly all around the capital, especially along the line of the Bug river north of the city. Fighting continued without change, the communique said, in the vicinity of Ostrow Mazowieckie, 50 miles northeast of Warsaw.

The communique also reported severe fighting along the San river, which flows from the Carpathian foothills in southern Poland, chiefly at Sanok, south of Przemysl, 50 miles west of Lwow.

In a broadcast from Lwow, the Polish army's general headquarters insisted "Warsaw is ready for a long defense" and stressed that action on the French-German front has now really started." But the Warsaw station also issued a warning of the impending attack on Lwow.

Early this morning, Polish Staff Captain Vaclav Lipinski, in a broadcast from the capital, said Polish anti-aircraft batteries had brought down during the day 15 German bombers over the city and its suburbs.

head machine-gunned a train-load of refugees. Entering Lwow Saturday I was held up for four hours outside the city because of air raids. Just as I drove in at dusk, a bomb fell on a railway oil tank car while my car was passing by. A few minutes later another bomb struck an alcohol refinery nearby.

Refugees Jam Roads.

All the way to the frontier, the roads were clogged with refugees, many of them hungry and destitute. Official broadcasts over the Polish radio had urged the people to stay in the cities, but terror was so widespread that whole areas are being rapidly evacuated.

I was the last foreign correspondent to leave Warsaw and make my way to the Rumanian frontier. On the entire journey, I was impressed by the hospitality of the people and the kind treatment accorded by refugees throughout the ordinarily short journey but which on this occasion required an entire week.

A resident of Lwow pointed out to me that because of the city's lack of anti-aircraft guns, the attacking Germans are able to pick out their objectives with ease. Many factories and oil refineries were in flames as I drove through, but private homes and hotels had escaped attack.

Although the early confidence of the Poles has all but disappeared, competent Polish observers still believe that the army could hold out through the winter if the rains start soon.

Polish roads are so bad in rainy weather that it is doubted the German command could maintain adequate communications and supplies east of Warsaw in conditions to which the Poles themselves are well accustomed.

Miss Elizabeth Albers to Be Bride of Francis R. O'Brien

ANNOUNCEMENT of the coming marriage of Miss Elizabeth Albers to Francis R. O'Brien was made at a tea, which Mrs. H. B. Albers gave for her daughter from 4 until 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the family home on Lexington avenue.

The 40 guests in attendance learned of the coming nuptials when Billy Albers, nephew of the bride-elect, passed out miniature "legal documents" announcing the date as Sept. 28. The wedding will be solemnized at 9:30 a. m. at St. Peter's Catholic church. Miss Rosemary O'Brien of Toledo, who is Mr. O'Brien's cousin, will be Miss Albers' only attendant, and Parker O'Brien will be his brother's best man.

Informally Speaking...

Lucy, dear:

Monday, Sept. 11.

It seems a long time since I've written you—and for that matter, I believe it has been—what with the holiday last Monday. . . . In spite of the brief heat wave we experienced last week, it looks much like fall is really upon us, and the long warm summer days are now pretty much of a memory—and I guess folks in Mansfield are quite aware of it too, because all the vacationers are settled back at home, and the college students have bid us farewell already—or they will in the very near future.

This morning's mail brought a letter from Mrs. Leigh Rorick. She and her husband are making their home in Florida now. . . .The Roricks left Mansfield about the middle of August and drove to Niagara Falls and Canada, and from there through the New England states visiting with friends in Boston, Mass., New Hampshire and Connecticut. . then on to New York City and the fair . . Washington, D. C., and south to Florida—incidentally, Lucy, in their four weeks' trip, the Roricks traveled over 5000 miles. . . .They are now residing at Bradenton beach on Anna Maria island.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beidle are pretty proud these days, Lucy, as they're grandparents. . . .Their son, Robert, and his wife (who now live in Wichita Falls, Tex.) are the parents of a baby girl, born last Friday—and meriting a long distance call all the way from Texas to Mansfield!

JOHN DAVEY is entertaining Steve Schuyler (his roommate at the University of Pennsylvania and fraternity brother in Phi Delta Theta) of Bloomfield, N. J. this week. . . .John recently returned from New York, where he spent most of the summer visiting with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Endly. . . .And next week he, Steve, and his sister, Martha Davey, will drive east—Martha will enroll at Harcum Junior college in Bryn Mawr, Pa., and John and Steve will be seniors in Wharton school of business and finance at the university.

* * * * *

And while we're speaking of college students, Lucy, I guess I'd better tell you that Jeannette Isaly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Isaly, has gone to Columbia, Mo., to attend Stephens college . . . .Vera Jo Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Batson, left Saturday for Ohio University, where she will be a freshman. . . .Roy F. Klopfenstine has gone down to Athens too—where he'll enter the university as a junior transfer student from Wooster college. . . .And Lionel Culp left town Saturday—he's gone to Heidelberg at Tiffin for his senior year.

* * * * *

YOU know Lucy, one just naturally attaches erudition and astuteness to college professors, but an especial show of clairvoyance such as three Wittenberg college administrators recently showed is really a little surprising. . . .Nearly a year ago, when Dean C. G. Shatzer set up the calendar for the college year (the 95th, which begins today), he indicated that Thanksgiving vacation for the students would begin on Nov. 23. . . .Dr. J. Philip Schneider edited the copy for the annual catalog, which was issued last April. . . .President R. E. Tulloss okehed the copy. . . .And then all three came in for quite some joshing until President Roosevelt made all three right. . . . But the question now is "how did they know so far ahead?"

* * * * *

There are a few Mansfielders who saved their vacations until September, however. . . .Mary Bullinger and her sister, Madonna Amato, are in New York City this week—visiting at the fair and attending the national hairdressers' convention. . . . Mrs. Arthur Knight is driving down to Atlanta, Ga.—She left this morning with her young son, Peter, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Seemuth. . . .They will follow the Skyline route down and in Atlanta visit with their sister and daughter, Mrs. Frederic Conrade and her family. . . .The Seemuths plan to spend the winter there, but Mrs. Knight and Peter will return in about three weeks.

* * * * *

THEIR vacation is just a pleasant memory for Mrs. Harvey Sawhill, Ada Stewart, Vangie Zimmerman and Emma Witchey. . . .and so they're now busy telling friends all the things of interest they saw and did while on a 16-day motor trip through the west.

You've probably read by now about the world premiere of the picture "The Rains Came," from the book by Louis Bromfield, and how all Mansfield turned out for it last Friday. You should have been there to see HOW Mansfield turned out—and by that I mean in what raiment. I couldn't begin to describe all the gowns for you, Lucy, but you'll get the idea when I tell you that the downtown stores literally sold out of evening and dinner dresses—and the men hurried to buy new dinner clothes and accessories—one men's store sold seven sets of studs and links in an afternoon.

WELL, Lucy, this long letter should make up for the one I missed last Monday, so I'll expect an answer from you real soon.

Lovingly,

Marianne
